Ellenville Fair Draws Big Crowd

Opening Day Noteworthy for Large Attendance and Completeness of Exhibits — Something to Interest Everybody—State Troopers Aid in Regulating Big Auto Traffic—Interesting Exhibits of Feminine Finery.

The 36th annual fair of the Ulster County Agricultural Society opened on Tuesday at Ellenville, with unusual pep and enthusiasm. Though it was the first day of the fair there were an unusually large number of exhibits ready for inspection; the Midway was doing a flourishing business; and there was horse racing in the afternoon. That alone gave the fair a much livelier send-off than when the opening day has had no such attraction. An excellent band was also a great attraction.

One novel feature of the Midway was a big booth where real canaries in gilt cages were for sale, and while not an advertised feature of the fair, a man in a booth right across the roadway could so cleverly imitate the feathered songsters that even they looked surprised and bewildered. A roast beef dinner could also be had on the Midway and looked and smelled good, and tasted the same. The auto exhibits had to be parked along the Midway and there were many auto devices for farm-labor saving of real interest. Another feature of this year's Fair that is making for greater safety and comfort, is the separate entrance for autos. And there are so many good-natured as well as efficient State Troopers everywhere that the attendants at the fair may be sure of every needed protection.

As early as Tuesday afternoon there was a fine showing of live stock, cattle, pigs, sheep, goats, fowls ducks and geese, rabbits, hounds, etc.

In the big exhibition building, Burgevin's Sons as usual hold the place of first note, in the center as one enters the building, and they have a splendid showing of fancy dahlia blooms, ferns, gladioli, lilies, begonias, coleus, etc. There are also fine floral exhibits belonging to the fair.

Evidently womankind has thoroughly realized the importance of beads and necklaces for it seemed as though almost every other booth in the building had strings of beads, carved necklaces and pendants and other similar novelties for sale.

If farming made easy was exhibited out on the grounds, home-keeping on the farm made easy was shown in the building, for there were several electric displays of washing machines; a Hoover vacuum sweeper, etc. Attractive home exteriors came in for their share of attention from those who were showing exterior stucco. This year, practically all of the commercial displays are being shown by Ellenville firms.

One thing is sure, the women who have exhibits at the Ellenville Fair get there on time, even if their show sections are not always ready for them. There is going to be an art exhibit that will be well worth seeing, for it was being arranged on Tuesday afternoon. There was basketry, hand-painted china; water colors and pastels, colored lantern slides, etc., and this exhibit is in charge of women. The most interesting and extensive as well as varied exhibition of women's handicraft, however, is that of needlework, and it is safe to say that this year's showing quite out-distances that of former fairs, perhaps because there are new forms of needle-craft. At all events, one could spend much time enjoyably viewing this section of the fair and also one would have to possess a considerable command of adjectives to describe adequately all of the fine handwork shown by the women.

Another exhibit of which the women are in charge is that of canned fruits, vegetables, etc., and honey in the comb. Then the Council of Jewish Women's Farm and Rural Department have a splendid display of vegetables and fruits right from the gardens, as well as canned fruits and vegetables. This organization is doing excellent work in creating canning and garden clubs among farm children.

One of the features of the Ellenville Fair for several years that has attracted crowds of women visitors is that of the New York State Health Department, known as the "Mother and Health Demonstration; Maternity and Infancy and Child Hygiene." This year in addition to the exhibition of layettes, care and feeding of babies, etc., this department is satisfactorily forming Mothers' Health Clubs throughout the country, and one can learn all about the forming of such clubs at this department of the fair. Public health nurses help to form these clubs, but really the best way to learn all about them is to go to the exhibit.

Now to come back to the men. The Ulster Farm Bureau was busy Tuesday afternoon getting its usually good exhibit in readiness for the crowds for the rest of the week.

Not one of the exhibits does a more thriving business than does the Ulster County Bible Society, with the Rev. Henry Smith in charge. There are always interested visitors at this booth which shows its wares in a most attractive manner, the children being particularly attracted by the colored Bible pictures, etc.

This year there is one entirely new and exceedingly interesting exhibit. It is that of the handicraft of the men at the Napanoch Institution for Defective Delinquents. Kingston people have heard Dr. Thayer, who is at the head of the institution, tell of what the men do, but at the fair it is possible to see what they do. For instance there is one section devoted to the display of aluminum articles made at the institution and bearing as a sort of trade mark, "I. D. D."; under that an Indian head—for "Napanoch," is an Indian word—and then the word aluminum. It is Dr. Thayer's ambition to have the institution manufacture all of the aluminum articles used in the various state institutions, and a good beginning has already been made. Then there are tin articles; bed-spring fabric; shoes; machine knit stockings, all showing an excellent degree of efficiency on the part of the men making them. Shirts made by the men are mighty fine examples of machine sewing, and the clothing—entire suits—are also well worth all the praise given them. A particularly noteworthy exhibit is that of iron or black-smithing work. The horse-shoes, iron tools, fire implements, etc., are exceedingly fine specimens of this sort of handcraft, as are the wooden handles for the same and the other articles of woodcraft.

Besides the well-made useful articles of wood, there is a very fine display of inlaid work and several full rigged ships, showing some of the creative as well as imitative genius of the men doing the work. Besides the fine inlaid work there is some exceedingly fine bead work, also done by the men. Hands as busy as those must be which do this work of varied sorts, must keep heads busy too, and with little spare time for devilment. Evidently Dr. Thayer knows the danger for the criminally inclined as well as the normal man in the "House, swept and garnished."

In the big tents, the showings of vegetables and fruits were arriving and now are in full glory. There were some splendid exhibits of early fruits on Tuesday.

Of course there was no end of interest in the horse-racing, which which will continue each day of the fair.

POUGHKEEPSIE BARBER SUED FOR $10,000

Mrs. Minnie Day of Poughkeepsie has brought action against J. Scaralta, a barber of Poughkeepsie, and asks $10,000 damages, alleging that he injured her scalp, which will make her permanently bald. Mrs. Day alleges that she asked the barber if he could satisfactorily bob and curl her hair before she entered the chair.

William A. Mulvey is attorney for Mrs. Day and in the complaint alleges as follows:

"That the defendant negligently and unskillfully conducted himself in the premises and in attempting to cut the plaintiff's hair, improperly, unskillfully and negligently burned the plaintiff's head and otherwise treated and handled the plaintiff so that the same became diseased and inflamed, thereby permanently and seriously and painfully injuring and disfiguring this plaintiff and asks that she be awarded the sum of $10,000."

Lowell scientists declared today they hoped to be able to learn definitely that Mars' temperature was considerably above zero.

May Try McCoy Within 30 Days

Noted Pugilist's Trial on Murder Charge May Start Promptly—Alienists Examine Him to Determine Sanity—State Insists He is Sane.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 20.—Alienists here today began exhaustive examinations of Kid McCoy in preparation for the expected insanity defense plea of the former pugilist when he goes on trial charged with the murder of Mrs. Teresa Mors.

McCoy, indicted yesterday by the grand jury on eight counts, including murder, assault and assault with intent to commit murder, was under observation of defense alienists, headed by Dr. H. O. Sheldon.

"I don't know whether McCoy is sane or insane," Dr. Sheldon said. "It will take more examination and observation before I make a statement either way."

McCoy, apparently normal and in good spirits, today occupied a cell in the county jail, across the street from the city jail, where he has been held since Mrs. Mors' mutilated body was found a week ago in the Nottingham apartments.

Plan to Rush Trial.

Plans were being made to rush the McCoy trial and District Attorney Asa Keyes said it probably would start within 30 days.

"I believe Selby is sane and I think he was sane when he killed Mrs. Mors," said Keyes. "I also believe he was sane when, later, he shot two men and a woman for which he stands charged with assault and further, he was sane when at the same time he robbed these and other persons."

While arrangements were being made for McCoy's trial, Albert A. Mors, the slain woman's former husband, made formal demand of the authorities to assist him in his search for Mrs. Mors' jewels, valued at between $60,000 and $100,000. He charged that some of the jewels were here by McCoy's sister, Mrs. Jennie Thomas. Attorneys for Mrs. Thomas said if she had any jewelry which had been owned by Mrs. Mors, she would return it today.

Seventh Sensational Trial.

Trial of Kid McCoy on a charge of murdering Mrs. Teresa Mors will furnish Los Angeles its seventh sensational murder trial in the last five years. Defendants in the other six were Harry, New, sentenced to life for murder of his sweetheart, Freda Lesser; "Bluebeard" Watson, sentenced to life for the alleged murder of 27 women; Mrs. Margaret Beete, given a life term for the murder of J. C. Denton, wealthy mining operator; Mrs. Clara Phillips, sentenced to life for the murder of Alberta Meadows, her rival; Mrs. Madalynne Obenchain, twice tried for the murder of J. Belton Kennedy, with both juries disagreeing; and Mrs. Margaret Willis, given a life term for the murder of Dr. Benjamin Baldwin.

Admits Firing 100 Buildings

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Aug. 0.—Having confessed to starting one hundred fires, according to Fire Marshal Thomas Brophy, George Gustow, 26, former bank clerk, was under arrest today. He was described by Brophy as "the most dangerous pyromaniac in the history of the New York fire department."

Fire Marshal Brophy quoted Gustow as saying:

"Thank God you got me. I'll unbosom myself and lighten sufferings. I am controlled by some mysterious force that makes me set buildings on fire. But I never had any desire to injure anyone."

Fire Marshal Brophy said no lives were lost at any of the 100 fires that Gustow confessed to starting.

Coolidge Will Not Be Hurried

Washington, Aug. 20.—President Coolidge is in no hurry to name new American ambassadors to Japan and Mexico and may wait until after the November election to make the appointments, it was learned here today.

The understanding in diplomatic circles is that Edgar A. Bancroft, a Chicago attorney has been picked for the Tokio post and that the state department has been informed that he is acceptable to the Japanese government.

Many names have been suggested to the president and Secretary of State Hughes for Mexico City post but no decision has been reached.

Fire Destroyed Money and Papers

Blazing Desk in Newcombe Oil Company Station Calls Out Fire Department When Streets are Thronged—Assessor Martin Burned in Rescue Work.

An alarm from Box 95 at 8:30 this morning took the firemen to the corner of Washington avenue and North Front street, where a fire was burning in a desk in the gasoline station of the Newcombe Oil Company. Assessor William B. Martin and other persons passing noticed the smoke and rushed to the station where employes who had been at work outside assisted in carrying the blazing desk out of the office and threw it down the dump in the rear of the station. An alarm was sent in and the firemen responded and extinguished the blaze with chemicals.

When discovered the blaze was burning throughout the desk. An attempt was made to remove the drawers where the fire was first seen, but when they were removed flames were discovered eating their way in all sections of the desk. About $50 worth of spark plugs and considerable money was in the desk, together with papers and records. The damage was considerable, the exact amount of which cannot be learned until a check is made to determine how much money was destroyed.

A large crowd of people were attracted to the scene as the alarm came at a time when the shop employes were on their way to work and hundreds of people were in the up-town streets awaiting the opening of the stores to participate in the Dollar Day bargains. One of the employes and Mr. Martin were quite badly burned about the hands while carrying the flaming desk out of the place. A quantity of oil and auto accessories in the station escaped damage.

Escapade More Than Doubled Age

Seventy Year Old Man Felt Intoxication Added 100 Years to His Feelings On The Morning After.

In city court this morning the adjourned case of Sam Daniels, charged with public intoxication, was brought up for trial before Judge Groves, who had arraigned Daniels on the morning following his arrest. After a short trial Judge Groves found the defendant guilty and imposed a fine of $5, which was paid. Chris J. Flanagan appeared for the defendant.

Alonzo Mowell, who resides at Creek Locks when he is not employed on one of the North River Coal Company boats, was arrested on Tuesday on the Strand on a charge of public intoxication. Alonzo entered a plea of guilty. During the course of his arraignment Alonzo told the court that although his actual age was 70 years he really felt like 170 because of his escapade. As he had never been arrested before, Judge Schirick imposed a fine of $5 which was paid.

Rose and Harry Short were arrested on Broadway by Officer Hess on Tuesday on a charge of disorderly conduct. Attorney Chris J. Flannagan appeared in behalf of Rose Short and entered a plea of not guilty, at the same time asking for an adjournment until August 28th which was granted. Harry Short entered a plea of guilty to the charge. After listening to Short's explanation of the affair Judge Schirick directed that his plea of guilty be changed to one of not guilty and that his case be adjourned to August 28th also. Harry was paroled without bail until the time of the trial, while Rose was held in $100 bail bond.

Dollar Day Crowd Broke Record

Enterprising Merchants Share in Benefits Which They Offered to Shoppers of Ulster and Adjoining Counties.

From all appearances, predictions that Kingston's community dollar day today would be the biggest in the history of the city were fully justified. Throughout the day the trolley cars were crowded with shoppers going to and from the different stores to take advantage of the exceptional bargains which the local merchants had offered. The streets in the business sections were crowded with automobiles which had come in from the surrounding country to take advantage of the sales and at times it was difficult to find parking room anywhere near the business sections of the city.

Before the stores opened there were many people waiting to secure first selection of goods and as the day advanced these small crowds grw into exceptionally large crowds as people arrived by train, automobile and bus from the county and surrounding sections. A great manay residents of this city, seeking to avoid the rush, went out early, but found that there were a great many others who had the same idea in mind.

Practically all of the stores who are offering Dollar Day bargains reported that they were carrying on the biggest business of any day this summer and that in all respects the day was the biggest Dollar Day ever held by the progressive merchants of Kingston.

As usual for an event of this kind, the crowds gathered early and there was considerable football tactics used, as the wise shoppers had read all the advertisements in The Freeman and were all set for their particular bargains. Many of the articles sold were limited one to a customer; this resulted in great gatherings of friends, and many "swaps" outside of the several stores took place during the day.

Soviet Opposes Dawes Report

Russian Government Not Desirous of Restoration of Euporean Peace—Communists Active Against its Adoption.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Williamstown, Mass., Aug. 20.—Asserting that any attempt to defeat the Dawes report is a crime against civilization, John Spargo, American publicist, attacked the Soviet government for its activities against restoration of peace in Europe, before the Institute Politics meeting here today.

"At its congress last month," said Spargo, "the leaders of the Third Internationale denounced the Dawes report and all efforts to effect a settlement of the terrible European crisis upon the basis of that report. From that congress was sent forth to the communist parties and groups throughout the world, a manifesto calling upon them to organize to prevent the adoption of the Dawes report. That manifesto is signed by two important members of the Russian government, Trotzky and Stalin, as well as by Zinoviev and Bukharin.

"There is not a single criticism of the report, no suggestion of any other basis for accord which might be adopted. Its sole animus is directed against the fact that it will reunite the sundered fabric of European society; that it will bring France and Germany nearer and make possible the restoration of European civilization."

Goffredi Struck By Milk Train

Tried to Cross Tracks Despite Signals and Yells of Flagman—Goffredi Unhurt—Auto Badly Damaged.

This morning a car owned and driven by Michael Goffredi of 70 Smith avenue, while proceeding up Grand street from Broadway, was struck by an Ulster & Delaware milk train which was backing across the crossing. The rear of the milk train caught the rear of Goffredi's Chevrolet touring car in such a way as to smash it up quite badly. Goffredi escaped without any injuries.

It is said by those who witnessed the accident that a flagman was on duty on the crossing at the time of the accident and that he yelled to Goffredi not to cross the tracks, as well as signalling to him. The car was towed to the garage of William Stork on Railroad avenue were it will be repaired.

Brass Tacks, Not Bombast, Says Dawes

Republican Nominee for Vice President Uses Plain Language in Accepting Nomination—Attacks Radicals Under La Follette's Leadership and Says Democrats are Not the Real Opponents of Republican Party Because They Try to Straddle.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—Bearing a standard which promised no evasion, temporizing or side stepping of issues, General Charles G. Dawes, Republican vice-presidential candidate, started eastward today on his campaign of "brass tacks," following his official notification at his home in Evanston last night.

Speaking before a crowd of between 75,000 and 125,000, the general frankly assumed the role of Republican burden bearer for the campaign, answered LaFollette's progressive challenge, the Democrats' League of Nations issue and defended his party's world court program.

Telegraph offices in Chicago and Evanston were swamped with congratulatory messages after the ceremony. Today the first one the general received was from President Coolidge. It read.

"Congratulations after having heard your speech by radio, which was very clear here."

Home radios, which brought his words clearly, were sought early by those of the huge throng which was crowded beyond amplifying distance of the candidate's words, even before Spokesman A. J. Jefferies, of Omaha had told General Dawes that the was his party's selection as President Coolidge's running mate.

Dawes at one point in his address declared that: "A formidable attack had been launched on the fundamental principles of our constitution by LaFollette."

His eyes narrowed and his jaw shot forward as he made this statement. He attacked the Democratic party, accusing it of a "straddling policy" by placing on its ticket one conservative and one radical candidate.

He said the Democratic party no longer is the chief opponent of the Republican. LaFollette's party, he said "with its danger of having the election thrown into the Senate," is the chief opponent, "a movement of untried and dangerous radicalism."

General Dawes was on his way today to Augusta, Me., where his opening campaign speech will be delivered Saturday. He will stop over between trains in New York and proceed to Westbrook, Conn., to spend a day with Walter Wilson, a former Chicago associate.

After the eastern trip he will return to Chicago and thence to Lincoln, Nebraska, where on August 29 he will discuss the agricultural question.

Text of the Speech.

Mr. Chairman, Members of the Committee, Ladies and Gentlemen:

I accept the nomination of the Republican Party for the office of Vice-President, of which you now formally notify me.

The formal notification of the candidates of the political parties has established the custom of discussion by them of the issues of the campaign.

This campaign is a campaign of domestic issues, and in the campaign I shall try to discuss them fully, but I cannot cover them all in one speech and say what I want to say. Political issues in the United States have become too serious to trifle with, and its citizens realize it. The discussion of facts and truth is demanded, and that takes time. This is a campaign of brass-tacks—not bombast.

This administration has reduced the cost of governmental operation, and it was not an accident. It did this by firmly assuming executive control of the business organization of government and by hard work—not by oratory. As a result, under our new tax law, approximately six million dollars per day less, for national purposes, will be collected in 1925 from the taxpayers, than for the fiscal year of 1921, and our public debt has been reduced during the budget years, under this administration, in the sum of $2,722,396,331.49. In 1921, the last pre-budget year, of the cost of government collected in national, state, and municipal taxes, after debt payments, our Federal expenditures were 59 per cent and those of the states, cities and towns, 41 per cent, but in 1923 the Federal Government took only 28 per cent of the taxes, and 72 per cent was spent by the states, cities, and towns.

These figures indicate that in the matter of economy and tax reduction, the Federal Government is headed in the right direction, and most of the states, cities, and towns of our country in the wrong direction.

The administration, in lowering the enormous amount of federal taxation, has lessened the drain from the pockets of the people and from the capital actively employed in productive industry.

President Coolidge, with fearless common sense and full knowledge of the facts and circumstances surrounding important decisions, endeavors to do the right and wise thing in the interests of the nation, uninfluenced by motives of political expediency. He courageously recommended the recognition of right principles in the tax reduction bill, indifferent to the demagogues who represent to the unthinking that those who lightened the burden on their backs sought to betray them in the method of unloading. But statesmanship, braving temporary criticism and misrepresentation of right purpose, is always decorated with the eventual vindication which comes with full understanding on the part of the public.

This subject of public economy, the subject of relief from taxation, and of an adequate tariff for the protection of our national prosperity, I will discuss upon other occasions. The non-partisan and economic agricultural question is a national question of such vital importance and so affecting national welfare, that it demands fuller consideration than is here possible. I shall discuss it in my speech at Lincoln, Nebraska, on August 29th.

I will therefore cover, however shortly, in this speech of acceptance, only three issues: one which I deem of the utmost importance, and two others—The League of Nations and The World Court.

An Important Question.

It is in the heart and conscience of our people that great issues are defined, and politicians align on them, but have little to do with selecting them. A formidable attack has been launched on the fundamental principles of our constitution, and elemental things like this must be fought out.

One party—the Republican Party, the party of progressive conservatism, under the leadership of President Coolidge, has taken its stand firmly upon the Constitution of the United States and all know where it stands. Opposed to it, and in reality its chief opponent though the result of the effort may be to deadlock the contest for the presidency and make Bryanism suceed the Coolidge policy, is a movement of untried and dangerous radicalism. With a platform drawn by one man, designed to soften as much as possible the apprehensions as to what the movement really means, an attempt is made to induce those who are patriotic at heart but disconcerted with existing conditions, to join with the socialists and other diverse elements opposing the existing order of things, as a mobilization of extreme radicalism. A man is known by the company he keeps.

In the words of the Associated Press of July 7th, "The National Convention of the Socialist Party of America formally enrolled under the LaFollette presidential banner." What is this banner which confronts the flag of the United States, upheld by President Coolidge and his platform? In answer, I quote from the same despatch of the Associated Press, from a telegram sent by Eugene V. Debs, reading in part: "I think it wise for our party to make no nominations under the circumstances, but at the same time to hold the Socialist Party intact, adhere rigidly to its principles and keep the red flag flying." Says the Associated Press further: "The Debs sentiment echoed the opinions expressed in the debate by such party leaders as Morris Hillquit of New York, Representative Victor Berger of Wisconsin, and Mayor Daniel Hoan of Milwaukee." Here is the battle alignment and here are the flags.

Lying between these two armies of progressive conservatism and of radicalism, which are properly aligned upon this issue in the minds and consciences of the American people, is interposed the Democratic Party, with one conservative and one radical candidate on its ticket, hoping to get votes by avoiding the issue.

In this situation, for which the American people alone are responsible, the Democratic Party, as a party, instead of recruiting itself from the battle lines, will suffer only the fate which befalls those who try to straddle in a real fight.

We are face to face with an abnormal condition in this country, existing because of lack of respect for law, caused in part by wide-spread demagoguery in legislative bodies, in part by the weakness of many of those commissioned to execute the law, and in part by the existence and activities of aggressive minority organizations behind selfish purposes.

In Congress, during the last few years, the American citizen has heard more demagogic utterances than have ever before characterized it. He has seen men running for Congress and the Senate, advocating in the same state at the same time, and irrespective of their inconsistency, increased

Jennie, who had lived in a small town all the days of her life, felt that her parents would not like it if she bobbed her hair. How she envied her friends with short hair, and how she longed to have her own heavy hair cut too. Jennie's good fairy must have heard that very wish, for presently there came a Philadelphia cousin who showed the little town girl how to dress her hair so that it looked short without being cut. This fashion of hairdress proved to be exceedingly becoming, as it lengthened the neckline and generally gave a more up-to-date look; in fact, the new coiffure bids fair to make Jennie the "belle of the party" from now on.

Women Find New Occupation

Smartly Dressed, They Help the Masculine Industry of Rum-Running—Other Interesting New York Topics.

New York, Aug. 20.—Women have entered almost every profession, and now they have become a useful addition to one of New York's leading masculine industries—rum-running.

The plebian name for the position they occupy is "decoy." Dressed in the height of yachting fashion, they recline in wicker chairs on the decks of the vessels.

Revenue officials recently discovered the trick when they captured a ship unloading a ton hooch which they had previously ignored, thinking it a pleasure yacht.

The City of White Lights has received a fiery splash of color in the use of red flashlights in the palms of traffic policemen at night.

This new method of traffic direction is being experimented with in congested areas. If it proves successful it will be adopted throughout the city.

A dancing rodeo! Tex Rickard, who has promoted everything from a knitting contest to a Democratic national convention, will soon create the greatest dancing carnival in the world.

The attempt to find the best toe-twinklers in the United States will penetrate into the smallest hamlet. Winners of local prize dancing shoes will meet in state contests, and the state winners will gather together in Madison Square Garden here for the grand finale, with a $12,000 prize for the winner.

And there will be rules, just like baseball, matrimony or any other national institution. Dancing masters, by the way, are trying to replace the "Bootleggers' Shake," the "Tiger Twaddle" and the "Camel Center" with dances containing less figures and more feet. Chief among the proposed substitutions is the "Raggedy Ann," a foxtrot, like a slow movie.

As one professor explained the situation in academic terms:

"If a kangaroo got on a modern dance floor he'd feel like a piker. People ain't taking dancing lessons no more. They don't have to."

Since the completion of the first jetty, measuring 720 feet, at Monmouth Beach, N. J., six weeks ago, 500 feet of white sandy beach have been added to the Campbell estate, on which the structure is situated, and it is expected that a new beach will be built up for half a mile down the coast.

The jetty is modeled along the design of that outside the Panama Canal, with a 40 degree angle and a mammoth line of rocks on each side of a wooden core. It cost $120,000.

Where do New York girls and boys spoon? In moving picture theaters, on busses, in hallways and taxicabs. The old-fashioned courting in parlors is not popular due to the tissue-paper qualities of city apartment houses, wherein a kiss sounds like an automobile backfire.

In spite of its sixty-nine newspapers printed in foreign languages, the Americanization of the East Side goes on automatically, thanks to the alert following of the latest styles by the East Side feminine sex.

Division street is the Fifth avenue of this picturesque foreign section, and the show windows are so brightly electrified and as artistically decorated as those of its uptown sister avenue.

And the creations—not called that by Division street customers, however—are every bit as chic. There is no good reason why they shouldn't be, as the same manufacturer sells to Division street as to Fifth avenue.

You may fool milady of the East Sixties and Riverside Drive as to price and quality of gowns, but there is small chance to hoodwink the Division street belle. She is the one who helps produce the garments in some loft factory during the day.

PHOENICIA.

Phoenicia, Aug. 20.—D. R. Hilson, secretary of the Phoenicia Fish and Game Association, planted 12 cans of trout in the Esopus. They were German brown fingerlings. Not long ago Mr. Hilson liberated 25 old bird pheasants, which means a climated and domesticated environment for the future young chicks, and a stride in the pheasant game advancement. He also reports that the pheasant eggs for hatching, hatched on a high average, while one hen sitting on 19 eggs hatched 19 chicks.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The first public school in New England was launched at Newport, R. I., 284 years ago, when the freemen of Rhode Island voted to support such an institution to be conducted by the Rev. Robert Lenthal, a Church of England clergyman. In Colonial days in America little thought was given to the education of children of the "common people," and among the well-to-do the opinion generally prevailed that such people were better off without any education.

The Rhode Islanders did not share this view, however, and when the Rev. Lenthal proposed to "keep a public school for the learning of youth," he found ready support for his project, and was granted 100 acres of land. Lenthal did not remain at Newport as a school teacher but returned to England a year or two later. Others took up the work, however, and since 1640 Rhode Island has not been without a public school.

CENTRAL AFRICA.

The first attempt to found a colony in the heart of Central Africa was made by the great Niger expedition from England in 1841. It was on August 20 of that year that the fleet, consisting of the steamships Albert, Wilberforce and Soudan, commenced the ascent of the Niger. The expedition was equipped on a magnificent scale, parliament having voted $300,000 to outfit it, but the Dark Continent was not yet to be conquered. At Iddah a terrible fever broke out among the crews and the entire party threatened with destruction, the vessels had to return. The Albert reached Egga, 320 miles from the sea, before setting out on the return voyage. The 2,600 mile length of the Niger has long since been conquered, Great Britain's boundary city of Timbuctu, famous in legend and popular parlance, being on its banks.

JEAN OF FRANCE AND NAVARRE

Was the wife of Philip IV, the Fair, of France, and the only child heiress of Henry I, King of Navarre and Count of Champagne. The Count de Bar having attacked Champagne, she placed herself at the head of a small army, capturing him and held him prisoner for a long time. She founded the famous College of Navarre and died at Vincennes in 1304, at the age of 33. Her husband was devoted to her and never took the titles of King of Navarre, and to all his ordinances he added that he acted with the concurrence of his dear companion, and Jean added her seal to that of her husband. She was married at 13 and bore her husband seven children.

What The Soda Clerk Told Her

BY close observation and asking questions, a woman may learn things of great value to her household. The soda-clerk, for example, can tell you that his uniform, when properly starched, stays white and clean much longer.

More than this, the remarkable new laundry starch, LINIT, makes such uniforms look and feel like linen. In the same way, LINIT gives all wash garments and household fabrics that soft and pliable finish of goods fresh from the store.

Linit is distinctly different from old-fashioned starches. This new starch penetrates and preserves every thread and helps to prolong the life of the material.

And since LINIT eliminates lint, your fabrics stay clean and fresh much longer.

American Flyers Face New Perils

Must Make Their Start From Iceland Within Four Days or Fly Without Navy Convoy, Whose Fuel Supply is Getting Low.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Aboard U. S. Richmond off Reykjavik, Iceland, Aug. 0.—(By wireless.)—If the army 'round-the-world flyers want to continue their epic journey with navy protection in the icy northern seas, they'll have to get started within the next four days. Admiral Magruder, in charge of the navy ships assisting the flyers, announced today that the vessels' fuel was being exhausted.

"Unless the flyers are able to take off by August 24," said Admiral Magruder, "it is probable they will have to fly without protection from the convoy, because of the need of fuel."

In order to facilitate the aviators' departure, Magruder plans to halt the Richmond and send naval planes 90 miles to Reykjavik with repair parts for the soldiers' machines, which were damaged when they attempted to hop off because of the added weight from the extra supply of fuel each carried.

By dispatching the parts by air, Magruder said, fuel will be saved for the ship.

An investigation was being made today to fix responsibility for a blunder that will cost the navy department $50,000. It is charged that a lieutenant's error caused the Richmond to travel 700 miles to take up its station with the repair parts needed by the machins, leaving the soldiers stranded at Reykjavik.

This futile journey cost $20,000 alone for oil for the Richmond with proportionate amounts for the other ships involved in the "wild goose chase."

The net result was to hold the flyers up another two days.

The Richmond arrived too late to allow Lieutenant Lowell Smith and Lieutenant Erik Nelson to repair their damaged airplanes and get away today so the next jump of the around the world flight was postponed until tomorrow.

If weather conditions permit the aviators will start for Cape Farewell, Greenland, tomorrow morning.

Railroads Seek Big Bond Issues

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Aug. 20.—The Baltimore and Ohio railroad asked the Interstate Commerce Commission today for authority to issue and sell $75,000,000 of first mortgage 5 per cent bonds.

At the same time the road asked authority to pledge as additional security to these bonds $75,000,000 prior lien bonds.

$3,000,000 Issue Asked.

Washington, Aug. 20.—The Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh railroad today applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to issue and sell $3,000,000 of consolidated 4½ per cent mortgage bonds of which $1,000,000 will be used to retire a government loan, $1,000,000 to take up four demand notes and the balance to remain in the road's treasury.

Sold $3,000,000 Mine for Just $125.

"SANDY" McINTYRE.

Esau's sale of his birthright for a mess of pottage was easily outdone by "Sandy" McIntyre, Western prospector, who discovered the famous McIntyre gold mine at Porcupine, and who sold it for just $125. The purchaser resold it for $300,000, and the mine has since paid $3,000,000 in dividends. "Sandy" is still prospecting.

MONEY MADE IN APPLE GROWING

Careful records kept for the past 20 years of the cost of every orchard operation and the income from the sale of the fruit in a typical 10-acre Baldwin apple orchard in Western New York show that apple growing has paid an attractive profit, at least, in this orchard. The average yearly net profit on a barrel of apples for the 20-year period has been $1.51 and the average annual profit per acre for the 20 years has been $120.71. Estimating that the orchard is worth $500 per acre, the average annual net dividend has been 26.3 per cent.

These and many other interesting figures on the costs and profits in growing apples in Western New York are presented in a bulletin by Dr. U. P. Hedrick, horticulturist at the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva. Dr. Hedrick has made a special study of the cost of production in an orchard which he believes to be typical of many fruit plantings in the state, and he believes that the figures that he has secured may be duplicated by fruit growers in general. The bulletin is now available for free distribution upon application to the experiment station.

White Canton Crepe Is Bordered With Green

Here is a winsome two-piece suit for summer wear. It is made of soft white canton crepe, bordered with dull green, a popular combination this season.

Beads in Quantity and Variety in Evidence

A sense of humor is needed to appreciate the quantity and variety of necklaces and other baubles that are now displayed in every place where things pertaining to women's dress are sold. They resemble most amusingly the button strings of our early childhood days and the marbles that in the springtime add so much to the happiness of little boys.

Millions of strings of beads, some of crystal and semi-precious in character, but most of them just glass, add to the decorative layout of the shops, big and little, and are worn without apology for their cheapness by women of taste and fashion.

Of course there are people of affluence who resist the temptation to deck themselves after the manner of Indian squaws, and who follow the fashion by wearing strings of fine stones and beads made of the genuine article; and some decline to wear anything in the way of a necklace other than their pearls or the other precious stones in their jewelry for evening dress.

The astonishing thing about some of the latest styles in necklaces, in both the long strings and the choker, is the size and weight of the beads. The marvel is that any but an Amazon is able to wear them and smile. "Beads", the size of a robin's eggs or a prize "chiney" in the game of marbles, made of rock crystal, clear, or of one of the many pretty colored imitations, weigh like a chain of rocks and would be burdensome if they were not the last word in the mode.

Deauville Scarf Brings Many Fashions to Surface

The Deauville scarf started more fashions than the different ways of wearing the printed square of silk. Imitations of it are shown in much the same patterns, to be worn as ties and sashes, as hat trimming and now as head kerchiefs. The newest covering for the head for out of doors, on the beach, the tennis court or the motor road is a square of printed silk or crepe knotted about the head.

A fetching kerchief is made of a square of gay Scotch plaid bordered with plain green crepe, and the kerchief is put on the head bandanna fashion, with knotted ends in front and behind. Another manner of wearing the kerchief is as an Indian turban, which is particularly pretty and becoming in printed flowery chiffons, georgettes and crepes. These beach caps, as they are called, are much liked in place of the little hats, being lighter and more comfortable.

The scarf devotee will be able to revel in many kinds of colors of scarfs by availing herself of the opportunity to buy them by the yard. Printed crepe de chine, crepe chiffon and the lightest quality of chiffon printed in flower and conventional patterns in gay colors on light tinted grounds—gray, beige, flesh, blue, green or white—are to be bought in scarf length. They require only to be hemmed at the ends, and make a stylish scarf for a reasonable price.

Chinese Novelties Are Featured in City Shops

Many of the engaging novelties are of the Chinese type, and as the appreciation of them grows more and more beautiful things are shown. In an exclusive shop is a dazzling display of chains, pendants and earrings in crystals, clear and tinted, and cut in delicate flower-like designs. A garland of blossoms made of jade, turquoise, pearl and coral, taken from a Chinese hairpin, is attached as a pendant to a slender gold neck chain.

Another shop, long known as a bazaar of genuine oriental antiques, has among its finest bits curious and lovely old buckles, one of rose quartz, pale green jade and dull gold. There is a buckle, too, of white jade with a crystal tinted like frozen emeralds and traced with gold. These and other interesting pieces have greatly increased the vogue of jade, which is especially charming with summer dress.

THE CONTRAST.

An American citizen, returning from abroad, said that in England the contrast between the popularity of President Coolidge and that of John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President, was marked, the Democratic nominee being by far the most popular. The same person, however, said that within a few hours after leaving the steamer he was more impressed with the difference in America between the popularity of President Coolidge and that of candidate Davis, President Coolidge being unquestionably the most popular and apparently increasing his popularity by the minute over that of the Democratic candidate. Then it dawned upon the returning traveller that Americans exceptionally popular in England are rarely popular at home.

Candidate Davis spent eight years in London as Ambassador to England and it would be natural that he would make friends among the royalty of the British Empire. Apparently he did so. In fact, his exceptional popularity in "Ole Lon'on" would indicate that of all his predecessors he was the most taking. Whether this has any particular bearing on his standing at home is difficult to determine but it may have some weight, the assumption being that those who add to their popularity abroad lose at home what they gain over there.

President Coolidge was living in a two-family house in Northampton, Mass., paying thirty-two dollars a month rent when Mr. Davis was basking in the sunshine of England's aristocracy. President Coolidge, who was Governor at the time, was at home doing for America what New Englanders always have done in trying to make it a better place in which to live. This, it must be remembered, is just as things may happen in the whirl of events, but, nevertheless, while Davis was getting popular in England Coolidge was getting more popular in New England, and, incidentally, it may be recalled that Mr. Davis did not come home to vote.

Fortunately for Mr. Davis, in his speech of acceptance he guarded against becoming too personal in his references to President Coolidge. What he was doing was plain enough in his implied personal attacks but it was fortunate for him that he did not go over the line. Had he done so, Governor Smith's advice, "Treat 'em rough," might not be restricted just for the use of the Democratic party. Mr. Davis might taste some rough treatment himself, friends of President Coolidge in New England and elsewhere having learned how to administer it while Mr. Davis was becoming exceptionally popular in England.

DISTURBING ALL AROUND.

Democrats are in a panic, and it would seem as if Governor Smith were among those appreciably disturbed. He is being urged to run again and those pleading with him assure him that he will be re-elected. The assurances of success, however, are not uttered, all of them, in behalf of the Governor as an individual. Not being the easiest fellow to fool, he is fully cognizant of the whys and wherefores. The truth is, those anxious to see him run feel that while the Democrats have scant chance of winning even with him as the candidate, they would have none whatever should he refuse.

According to reports the Governor was at one period willing to run again, but as the days went on he saw the outlook for a Democratic national victory was so dark that it might destroy all opportunity for a triumph in the state. It was then that he determined the best thing he could do was go west and speak for Davis but keep out of the running and thus protect, if not enhance, his political future. This threw the Democrats holding state positions into a panic. For them, it is said, the Governor had no sympathy because he was fully aware why they wanted him to brave a third term against all odds.

It is conceded that Governor Smith, since the outbreak in the meeting of the Democratic national committee, and on the day Mr. Davis was notified, has been convinced that this is the year for him to help Mr. Davis, or anybody, so long as he is not destroyed in the doing. This ostensibly prompted his friends to repeat that no one man could stem an avalanche, which, extended a bit, and in the light of 1920, could be interpreted as a concession of Democratic disaster. It created a panicky condition but it proved that the Governor, sensing the danger ahead, was not being fooled by those beseeching him to go to the well once more.

Judging from what is said, the Governor may accede to those who want him to run again, not by any means the office holders, but the national leaders. If he does, many Democrats agree that he will run hoping to win but not expecting to stem a Republican landslide for Coolidge and Dawes. Governor Smith knows the weight of Bryan on a ticket, for he knows that under ordinary circumstances it would be easier for him to assail Davis than it would be for him to assist the Democratic condidate for president.

That Body of Yours

PYORRHOEA AND A SLUGGISH CIRCULATION.

A dentist and physician, discussing that widespread ailment pyorrhoea, began to compare notes.

The physician asked the dentist this pointed question: "Have you noticed that pyorrhoea seems to be more common in our upper than in the poorer classes?"

The dentist agreed that such was the case.

"Now as to the care of the teeth, do the upper classes not brush their teeth more regularly, and in a general way watch the condition of the teeth better than the poorer classes?"

The dentist again admitted this to be the case.

"Isn't the condition as a whole more common than it ever was before?"

"Yes."

"Well what's the matter?"

"Well," stated the dentist, "it only goes to prove that it isn't the condition of the gums themselves, but of some general condition in the body.

"When mouths that never see a toothbrush escape, and others that receive constant attention are affected, there must be a reason."

"This," said the physician, "is just what the medical profession and the dental profession also are beginning to realize. It is not uncommon to find patients with pyorrhoea suffering also with some general constitutional disturbance such as constipation, rheumatism, and gout. It is frequent also among tuberculosis patients.

One suffering with tuberculosis, with gout, rheumatism or constipation is certainly not going to move around very much. The first three incapacitate him as to walking or any exercise, and constipation is the most effective method known for making a man lazy, mentally and physically.

What is the result?

Two very simple things happen and yet they tell the whole story.

The man who can't or will not move his body will weaken his heart muscle and thereby slow up his circulation. The blood "loiters" too long in various part of the body, including the gums. It does not bring the blood to the part in the best of condition.

And then again, the wastes are not removed because of this inactivity of the body.

Every physician knows that getting the wastes away from the body is the most important point of the treatment.

"Then," said the dentist, "the cause of pyorrhoea is sluggish circulation?"

"I think so," said the physician.

"So do I," said the dentist.

Think it over.

WEST SAUGERTIES.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hunn of Newark, N. J., spent Monday night at the home of S. P. Cole, returning on Tuesday, taking his mother, who has been spending a week here, and also Miss Emily Cole, with him.

Great excitement was experienced here on Monday by the passing through the place of 500 policemen of the New York city riot squad on their way to the recreation camp in Platte Clove to spend their vacation.

It is rumored that William Vedder has sold his place to Mrs. Van Andres.

Our new mail carrier seems to be doing very well, especially in a very trying season.

License Blanks Not Yet Received

Operator of Motor Vehicle Must Procure License by October First Unless Time is Extended by State, Which is Dilatory in Sending Out Application Blanks.

Application blanks for operators' licenses as required by the law for every operator of a motor vehicle have not been received as yet at the office of the county clerk of this county where applications must be filed. Although the law went into effect on July first an extension of time was granted until October first and at that time a further extension will probably have to be granted. County Clerk John Saxe expects to have application blanks available by the last of the month and as soon as they are received they will be given wide distribution through garages and other means so that the public may have easy access to them.

It is not necessary to appear personally at the office in making application for an operator's license. The blank properly filled out may be sworn to before a notary public and mailed to the office where, if no road test is required of the applicant, the necessary license card will be returned provided the applicant is eligible.

In case a road test is required, notice of the time will be given.

Persons who are physically fit and who have operated a car for a specified time and driven 1,000 miles will not be required to take a road test. Provisions are made in the issuing of licenses to turn down an applicant who has had accidents, or who is physically unfit, or uses intoxicating liquors to excess.

One item which may cause considerable difficulty in many cases is the fact that persons between the ages of 18 and 21 will have to provide a copy of a birth certificate or an affidavit from a parent before a license to operate a car may be issued This will prevent persons who are approaching the age of 18 and who appear to be of age from securing an operator's license.

Notice of the receipt of blanks will be made by Mr. Saxe as soon as received at the Ulster county clerk's office The issuing of operator's licenses will be a big task, as frequently several members of a family drive one car and each will be required to secure a license. It is not necessary to own a car to get an operator's license, and this will undoubtedly mean that many who do not own cars will also make application.

Jewelry Robbery Nets $150,000

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Boston, Aug. 20.—Four armed bandits today held up Frederick Ives, manager of the Carl H. Skinner Jewelry Company, Boylston street, and at the point of revolvers robbed him of a box containing diamonds and other jewelry valued at $150,000.

Ives had just removed the valuables from the safe when the bandits entered and forced him to turn over the box to them.

Police were notified and chased the robbers several miles but they escaped in an automobile.

The robbery was one of the boldest ever recorded in criminal history here. Scores of pedestrians passed the store while the holdup was being executed. A traffic officer was on duty hardly fifty yards away at the time.

According to Ives, a man he described as a lookout was outside shortly before the robbery. He had been noticed in the vicinity of the store for a week past, it was said.

One of the four men who entered the store pinned Ives to the floor while the other three took the jewel casket to a waiting automobile. Ives captor then followed.

John W. Stead, a messenger, ignored the bandits' warning to remain quiet, rushed to the rear of the store and secured a revolver. When he reached the street the bandit car had started and he discharged the weapon into the air to summon the police. The chase that followed in several taxi-cabs and police machines proved fruitless.

Jury Disagreed Over Van Keuren

Could Not Determine Whether Man Carrying Shot Gun Was Guilty of Disorderly Conduct of Clambake.

W. W. Van Keuren of the Saugerties road, who was arrested several days ago on complaint of A. E. Miller, who charged Mr. Van Keuren with disorderly conduct in threatening with a shotgun, was given a trial before Justice of the Peace Webber of the town of Ulster Tuesday evening. The trial resulted in a disagreement of the jury. When haled before the judge at a prior hearing Mr. Van Keuren demanded a jury trial.

Floyd W. Powell appeared for Mr. Van Keuren and Chris J. Flanagan represented the district attorney's office. After a two hours' deliberation the jury was unable to agree and was discharged. A new trial will be held on the evening of September 4 at 6 o'clock.

The trouble grew out of a clambake which was held about a week ago on the Miller property on the Saugerties road near the Van Keuren place. Testimony was to the effect that during the bake someone started throwing clam shells about. According to witnesses none of them went upon the Van Keuren property across the road, but Mr. Van Keuren appeared with a shotgun and threatened those who threw the shells. The result that there was an argument between Mr. Miller and Mr. Van Keuren, and the arrest resulted. Mr. Van Keuren admitted he had a gun but stated that the was being annoyed.

The court room was crowded with spectators and several witnesses were sworn by the complainant. Mr. Van Keuren took the stand in his own behalf.

FOX VOWS VENGEANCE

OF COURSE, neither Madam Duck nor any of her family planned the downfall of Mr. Fox, but it was such an undignified tumble—as well as very unpleasant—that he vowed if he lived and had his health—and appetite—he would see to it that the duck family paid in full for his ridiculous accident.

Mr. Fox had long watched the pond where the ducks from a neighboring farm went every day for a swim. They were very plump-looking birds and many times Mr. Fox had craved one or more for his dinner.

It was not so easy to capture ducks on this pond because there was so much open space around it at one spot, and so, though he had tried, Mr. Fox had not been successful in making a catch.

The Fat Ducks Looked at Him.

But Mr. Fox had made up his mind to have one of those fat ducks or know the reason why. And so one morning he lay in wait where he could see the pond and watched for the ducks to take their daily swim.

Now there had been a very hard rain for several days which had done a great deal of damage. Mr. Fox did not know anything about this, and if he had he would not have thought that rain could damage a pond.

It had rained so fast and hard that even the ducks had stayed under cover, so when the sun came out every duck came waddling to the pond early for a swim. The pond seemed alive with ducks, Mr. Fox thought as he watched.

It was hard work for him not to make a dash in the open straight for the pond and make a spring in the midst of them, but Mr. Fox was wise from experience. So he stepped stealthily along, with eyes and ears alert, and himself hidden, until he came to the spot where the bushes were thick enough to hide him.

Mr. Fox was so keen upon getting his breakfast that he did not notice that he was creeping along on some very old boards half hidden in the muddy ground, nor did he see that one end of the boards was not on the ground at all but over the water.

This had once been a place where a boat was tied and the boards had been held up near the water ends by two small posts. One of these had fallen and the heavy rain of the past few days had washed away the earth that held the other, so that the weight of Mr. Fox was too much for the old post to hold up, and down it went, and with it Mr. Fox.

Into the mud he fell, splash! While all the fat ducks looked at him and quacked loudly as he scrambled up the bank and made off for some place where he could hide.

And this is the reason he vowed vengeance, for nothing could have convinced Mr. Fox that those ducks did not have it all planned to trap him.

"Anyway, they did not catch me," he muttered as he went along. "And if I am lucky enough to escape the gun of Mr. Man and have as good an appetite as I now have, I will make that family of ducks pay for this dirty trick. Look at my coat! All mud! It will take me all day to dry it!"

Have You This Habit?

By Margaret Morison

TALKING—ACTING

AS THE professor picked his way down the streaming street through the last violent torrents of the storm, he saw Eddie Clapper's little car standing at one almost flooded curb. The tiny runabout was packed with the squirming legs and romping bodies of seven children; they somersaulted over the wheel, they stood on their heads upon the seat, they crammed themselves into corners meant for packages and umbrellas Then upon this confusion appeared Edward, snugly encased with a shiny rubber coat. Standing on the sidewalk at a yard's distance, Edward began to harangue the infants:

"Now you get right out of there. Don't you know that if one of you knocked the brake you might start off and kill yourselves? The engine's going and my chains aren't much use in this slippery weather. You have no right anyway to get into my car without permission. I might call the police if I wished and have you all arrested."

Here from the fruit shop where Edward had been buying peaches emerged a coatless, hatless Italian. One small boy he seized by the leg, another was pushed through the far side of the car, the rest evacuated of their own accord, and the Italian without a word went back to his shop leaving Edward in possession. With an expression of, "See what a fine boy am I," he got aboard in a leisurely way and drove off.

The next fall Eddie Clapper was appointed delegate to a national convention that was being held that year in a western city, and every night for two months Eddie talked at meetings of what the convention would accomplish. The professor went to hear him. Eddie was in his element as he beamed and smiled upon his already convinced audiences, and everybody had a fine time. As yet Eddie Clapper had never talked against opposition

Then came the day of his departure. The special train that was to take the delegates to the convention had been made up, and the seats were beginning to fill. Several of his friends, among them the professor, had come to see Edward off. Quarter of an hour before starting time, he had not appeared. Ten minutes of, and he was not there. The clock hands advanced. No Edward. With three minutes left, the professor went off on a final search. Outside the station he found Eddie standing within a tight little circle of the other party. They were egging him on and drawing him out and Eddie, perfectly happy to be talking, stood there forgetful of his train and of action. Though the professor seized upon him they missed it, and for the whole session the incident afforded campaign material for the other side. But Eddie Clapper himself continued, as long as the professor knew him, to talk glibly and to act feebly.

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Facts about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day, lucky jewel

LUCINDA

LUCINDA is a Seventeenth century product. It is the romantic version of Lucy, a name borne by many noble ladies of that period, whom poetry preferred to address as Lucinda, under the impression that the latter was more pleasing and popular than the simple Lucy.

Lucinda, of course, signifies light. Her origin is with the Latin word lux, meaning light, which gave rise to the favorite old Roman name Lucius, one born at daylight, or one of fair complexion, as some translations would have it.

The first feminine form which paved the way for the rise of Lucinda, was Lucia. This name belonged to a virgin martyr of Syracuse, whose name of light, being indicated by early painters by a lamp or by an eye, led to the legend that her beautiful eyes had been put out. Santa Lucia was the patroness of Neapolitan fishermen, and her name was soon adopted by the Normans.

The daughter of the earl of Marcia was baptized Lucia in the time of Edward the Confessor. France received her as Lucie through the House of Blois. One Lucie, a sister of Stephen, was among those lost in the White ship In England, Lucy was the favorite form, until the affectation of the Seventeenth century produced Lucinda.

Lucy Anne, another popular English version, had its counterpart in Italy in Luciana, and in France in Lucienne.

The amethyst is Lucy's talismanic gem. It will safeguard her from dander and contagion, and has a sobering effect upon a frivolous or high-strung temperament. Saturday is Lucinda's lucky day and 4 her lucky number.

HAPPINESS THROUGH WORK SPLENDID TYPE OF THRIFT

By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift

It is well to bear in mind that one of the greatest sources of human happiness is work. And this is a truth that could be more widely learned to advantage.

Too many follow the rule that the more work they can avoid the greater will be their happiness.

There is no true happiness in an idle life. Waste of time is a form of thriftlessness that is as destructive of rightful pleasure as waste of money or waste of health.

Work alone brings happiness, because work is creative and upbuilding.

All the instincts of the human race which have been responsible for humanity's development have found their fulfillment only in work.

In every realm of man's activities, whether it be spiritual, mental or physical, human experience has shown that progress alone has come through work.

This does not mean that there is no rightful place in life for play, or that diversion is not in accordance with good thrift. It is a matter of common sense, that life cannot be made up entirely of labor. There would be little if any progress in a material way under such a condition, and, in the finer things of life, there would be absence of all development.

You cannot transform a man into a machine and get human results. But, within the average routine of life, work brings the most satisfying happiness — work that is right, upbuilding and helpful.

Do not allow an ambition for idleness to spring up in your heart. Wasting time, never, under any circumstance, can bring lasting joy. It is not dissimilar to every other unthrifty practice.

Happiness through work is one of the fundamentals that can be continually counted on. It is a splendid type of true, constructive thrift.

Future War Base May Be in Spain

French Charge That Germany is Establishing Huge Arsenal In That Country for Future Military Operations.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, Aug. 20.—Accusation that Germany is converting Spain into an arsenal for construction of armaments and munitions for future use by the Germans, was made by the newspaper Matin today.

It was asserted that German capitalists, notably the Krupps, have purchased Spanish shipping companies, industries and docks for the purpose of arming Germany in the future.

"The immediate consequence of German companies legally becoming Spanish is that they can take advantage of Spanish protective tariffs," said the Matin "Thus the peninsular markets would be closed to French, English and American metal and chemical products.

"In the future we must negotiate Spanish commercial treaties with the Germans. The products are camouflaged as Spanish so that they can receive the benefits of Spanish commercial treaties with Argentine and other Latin American republics."

The Matin supported its articles by printing a letter which purported to reveal that German companies in Spain are manufacturing heavy artillery and munitions to be delivered to Germany at a later date.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE PIGEONS

"Free meals are very delightful," said the first pigeon.

"They are, indeed," said the second pigeon.

"I love them," said the third pigeon.

"Coo, coo," said the fourth pigeon, "I agree with all of you."

"I agree, too," said the fifth pigeon. "You might as well know that I agree with you, too."

"And how about me?" asked the sixth pigeon.

"I, too, think free meals are very delightful," he added.

"The same thoughts as I have," said the seventh pigeon.

"I think free meals are delicious," said the eighth pigeon.

"That is, of course, when they are delicious, and they almost always are delicious."

"Almost always," said the ninth pigeon, "almost always."

"Just about always, coo, coo," said the tenth pigeon.

"Is there a free meal to be had now?" asked the eleventh pigeon.

And a twelfth pigeon came along saying:

"Coo, coo, I am ready for a free meal."

So the 12 pigeons gathered themselves about two boys.

These two boys had brought out a great deal of food for the pigeons, for they often fed the pigeons.

The pigeons had become very tame and would perch on the boys' shoulders and knees and walk all about them.

They knew who were their friends and they wanted to show their thankfulness by being friendly and in not being frightened.

That was why these 12 pigeons knew so much about free meals.

And there were other pigeons who knew about free meals, too, for not all the pigeons were around just now who usually came and gathered about the boys.

But pretty soon there was a great deal of noise and down from the window ledges and eaves and from all about, it seemed, came many other pigeons.

Often on the Street.

"Meal time," said a thirteenth pigeon.

"Goodies," said a fourteenth pigeon.

"Things to eat," said a fifteenth pigeon.

"Refreshments," said a sixteenth pigeon.

"Dinner is ready," said a seventeenth pigeon.

"Supper is ready," said the eighteenth pigeon.

"Breakfast is ready," said the nineteeth pigeon.

"Call it whatever you like," said the twentieth pigeon. "I see things to eat."

"How kind these boys are," said the twenty-first pigeon.

"Just as kind as they can be," said the twenty-second pigeon.

"So good to us," said the twenty-third pigeon, "and I hope they know how we appreciate it."

"We try to show them as best we can," said the twenty-fourth pigeon.

And a twenty-fifth pigeon went on: "Coo, coo, this is a treat."

These two boys lived in a city. There were many of the pigeons around the park who were always fed and who had many friends.

But these pigeons had no other friends save these boys. Often on the street you would see the boys with the pigeons all about them.

There were 25 there for the latest treat, but often there were even more.

Oh, the pigeons had a very good time.

And the boys had a good time, too. It would be hard to say whether the boys enjoyed feeding the pigeons more than the pigeons enjoyed being fed, or whether it was the other way around. Or, whether all enjoyed it equally.

I think this was it!

If solid happiness we prize,
Within our breast the jewel lies,

From our own selves our bliss must flow,
And that dear hut—our home.

FOR THE FAMILY TABLE

A simple dessert which will be good for the children of the family, is:

Jelly Pudding.—Boil together two cupfuls of water and one glass of jelly until well dissolved, add three-fourths of a cupful of sago which has soaked for an hour to soften, then cook twenty minutes, or until the sago is clear. Sweeten to taste, pour into molds and serve with cream when cold.

Velvet Sherbet.—Take the juice of three lemons, add two cupfuls of sugar and one quart of rich milk. Stir until the sugar is dissolved; it will curdle but will freeze smooth as velvet. Freeze as usual.

Banana Fluff.—Peel three large ripe bananas, cover them with two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and one tablespoonful of grape juice; place on ice to stand for an hour. Mash them and beat well, adding one-half cupful of powdered sugar and the unbeaten whites of three eggs, one at a time. When light add a teaspoonful of vanilla and serve in glasses with fruit juice and minced pistachio nuts.

Wisconsin Cherry Duff.—Take two tablespoonfuls of sugar, one-fourth of a cupful of butter (four tablespoonfuls), one-half cupful of sweet milk, one egg, one-half cupful of flour, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of salt and one cupful of sweet canned cherries. Bake in gem pans and serve with:

Cherry Sauce.—Take one cupful of cherry juice, thicken with one teaspoonful of cornstarch, add one-third of a cupful of sugar, a pinch of salt and a teaspoonful of butter added just before serving, with a few drops of almond flavoring.

Browned Carrots.—Scrape and cut in half medium-sized carrots, parboil for fifteen minutes, then lay around a roast of mutton and baste often with the fat from the pan. Serve around the roast on the platter.

When the fresh new cucumbers are crisp and green it is the time to put up pickles for winter.

"A WOMAN of PARIS"

Edna Purviance

Written and Directed by

CHARLES CHAPLIN

"Call Up the Other Lady"

said the richest bachelor in the city to his valet when a woman of Paris sought to choose between her loveless luxury and marriage with the man her heart had chosen.

A Drama of Fate

which pictures in sharp, stirring realism how the little things of everyday life among everyday people bring tragedy to some, joy and great happiness to others.

A picture with more of Charles Chaplin in it than any film in which this great star ever appeared himself.

All Cooks Look Alike

SCIENTIFIC WONDERS "OUT IN THE OPEN"

Museum Makes Things Plain to the Average Man.

Will American cities soon be adding to the public library and the art museum another temple-like structure whose object is to popularize science?

Although this is above all the age of science, the average man has had to depend for his knowledge on reading. At Washington there has recently been opened a "Wonder House of Science," where the ordinary man can familiarize himself at first hand with the methods whereby the marvelous results of science are obtained. The new institution was immediately seen to fill such "a long-felt want" that other cities undoubtedly will copy the idea.

Any visitor can go through the stately marble palace and work the machines and instruments for himself. He can study the sun; he can watch earthquakes and tremors being recorded; he can examine things with high-powered microscopes; he can look at the vibrations of his own voice; he can himself perform the marvels that he has read about in the Sunday supplements.

The Wonder House of Science is neither museum, scientific laboratory nor theater. And yet it is all of these and more—testifies Raymond J. Brown in Popular Science Monthly. The glass cases for exhibits and the familiar "Hands Off" of the conventional museum are conspicuously absent. The exhibits are in plain sight, unguarded and unprotected.

"More than that," he goes on, "you and I, when we call on science in its new home, are urged and invited to handle the exhibits and experiment with them as much as we please.

"Though they are made up of the most delicate, intricate and expensive instruments of the modern scientific laboratory, they are not reserved for the exclusive use of experts, as would be the case in a laboratory.

"On every exhibit are attached plain directions, which instruct us how to turn the switches, to press the buttons, to focus the eye-pieces.

"The purposes of the experiments are explained; we carry them on with our hands, observing the details of the successive stages with our own eyes, and we appreciate the significance of the conclusion as we never could were we merely to read of it or to hear it discussed by a lecturer. No theater could provide a spectacle more amazing than this almost bewildering array of scientific wonders, made tangible and understandable to all who come to see.

"There is the matter of earthquakes, for example. Ordinarily we hear only of the great disasters, such as the one that occurred last year in Japan, but earthquakes happen rather frequently—10,000 times a year, once at least every hour, according to the latest testimony of the scientists. There was graphic evidence of that fact on the broad recording tape of the new-type seismograph that was the first thing I saw when I entered the building."

Nocturnal Animals

The gray-haired generation is forever taking snapshots at the rising one, says the Los Angeles Times. There is an indicated wonderment as to the whereabouts of the wandering boy this evening. Grandfather is blaming the parents. He is utterly oblivious of the fact that his criticism is a reflection upon his own methods of discipline. Boys and girls have fared forth at evening in other generations. They will continue the habit as other generations rise. Do parents have any control over their children? The query has been running for a couple of thousand years at least and we are all sure that the boys and girls we now have are quite the most vicious and sophisticated the world has ever had. We said it of the last generation and will broadcast it for the next. It is the one theme that never fails.

Working the Rule

A mother was sending her little girl to the post office in a small town with 10 cents to buy five 2-cent stamps for the five letters she was sending. She had been in the habit of giving the few extra pennies left from a purchase to the little girl, so she said:

"What will I get back, mother?"

"Nothing, dear, I am sending the exact amount," but the negative reply brought disappointment to the little girl.

Immediately the conversation was changed to loving people, the mother telling her that if we love people they will love us, that we get back what we give. The little girl looked up with a face beaming with hope. "Then I ought to get this 10 cents back, mother."—Exchange.

Lobsters and Small Boys

A curious point of similarity has been discovered by Canadian scientists between little lobsters and little boys. The scientists have found that the lobsters do not like cold water. The corresponding trait in the juvenile male of the human species is a matter of common observation. Dr. A. G. Huntsman, biologist of the biological board of Canada, has found that lobsters are abundant and small lobsters, particularly fry, present in any considerable numbers only in waters with a summer temperature of 52 degrees or higher. Adult lobsters will survive in colder water, but the younger ones are discouraged sooner and refuse to live in such a chilly world.

Greatest Drinking Song

The world's greatest drinking song, it is claimed, is "Let Me in a Tavern Die," written in the Eleventh century by Walter Map, who is also credited with a large part of the romances of King Arthur.

Secretary of War John W. Much mystery surrounds the death of Julia Warnock, Follies beauty, who was found dead in her bathtub in New York City, physicians asserting that she did not die a natural death. Frances Aileen Milner, 15-year-old New York City dancer, eloped with Harry Parker Lessard, of Portland, Me., repented of it half an hour later, and now seeks an annulment, charging the groom with fraud, because, she says, he told her he had an income of $1,000 a week. Andre Citroen, the Henry Ford of France, is credited with winning 10,000,000 francs in one night playing baccarat at Deauville, France.

Coolidge Will Renew Old Times

Enjoying His Vacation by Visiting Acquaintances of His Youth—Home Town Coolidge Club Membership Now Reaches 14,000.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Plymouth, Vermont, Aug. 20.—President Coolidge, vacationing here at the home of his father, planned today to renew acquaintances and associations of old.

For five days the president has been in virtual seclusion, venturing hardly farther from the front porch of the Coolidge home than to visit the cemetery a few hundred yards down the road, where his son, Calvin, Jr., lies buried. He is anxious to get around a little, and see some of the friends of his youth. Consequently a long motor drive through the country has been planned. Only one definite call is on the schedule, however. Any other stops will be left to the whim of Mr. Coolidge.

The first visit will be to the farm of Dick Brown, temporary headquarters of the Home Town Coolidge Club, a political organization conceived by the natives of Plymouth townspeople. The Home Town Club now boasts of a membership of 14,000 each having paid one dollar.

The enterprising officers of the club have placed a register in the home of Colonel John Coolidge, the president's father. Each of the many tourists who pass through here daily is offered an opportunity to "finance and become a member." Henry Ford, Thomas A. Edison and Harvey Firestone, who passed through yesterday, are the newest members.

The president and his family listened on the radio last night and heard the speech of General Charles G. Dawes, delivered in Evanston, Ill., accepting the Republican nomination for the vice-presidency.

THE CLOVE.

The Clove, Aug. 20.—A number from this place attended the Millhook picnic on August 13, at Accord. All report a nice time and a large crowd.

Mrs. Alvena Yeaple and Mrs. Mrs. Frank Silkworth and son visited Mrs. John C. Yeaple one day the past week.

Harry Coddington and family and Mrs. Harry Hamell and family were called to this place last Tuesday owing to the death and funeral of their mother, Mrs. Gertrude Coddington, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Edna C. Ayers. To fulfill one of Mrs. Coddington's last requests, the funeral was private. Much sympathy is felt for Mrs. Ayers, with whom her mother has resided for the last two years, and where she will be missed exceedingly.

Miss Ruth Yeaple is spending a few days' vacation with out of town relatives.

A number are planning to attend the Ellenville fair this week.

Simon Terwilliger has purchased a new Durant sedan.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Yeaple, Mr. and Mrs. William Sheeley, Ida Sheeley, Beatrice Yeaple and Mr. and Mrs. John K. De Puy spent Sunday at Forsyth Park in Kingston.

Twenty-five people attended services at The Clove Chapel Sunday evening. We were very glad to see a good attendance from the Upper Clove, and hope that Sunday evening, August 31, will show a still better attendance. Sunday evening services are in charge of the Rev. T. S. Braithwaite. His talk Sunday evening was "A message from the wild flowers," which was very interesting.

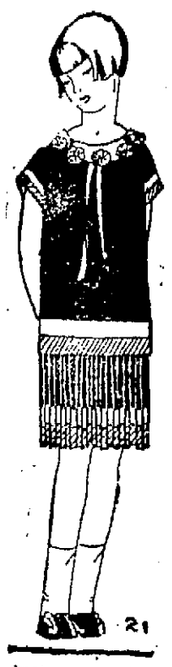
JUNIOR JOTTINGS.

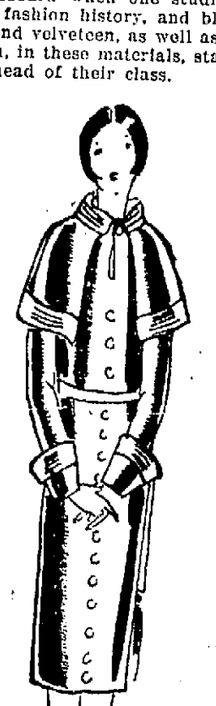
(By Eleanor Gunn.)

Enter the Directoire into schoolroom circles and the bolero with it. The influences which dominate the modes of the grown-ups are not discounted for those in the so-called awkward age.

The tunic comes in small as well as large sizes, and plaids and bright tones generally give a cheery aspect to the departments one visits in the hectic scramble to assemble a school wardrobe.



Plaid velvets are writ large on the blackboard when one studies current fashion history, and black velvet and velveteen, as well as shutter green, in these materials, stand near the head of their class.



There are some circular lines, godets even for juniors, but for the most part there is manifested a plea for simplicity. Of course, there are pleats and of course there is the ensemble coat, and hats which are replicas of those worn by elders—gay scarfs, too, best beloved by all.

Furriers have no hesitancy in stating that fur coats for the younger generation have developed into a tremendous part of their business. There are many youthful models of all lengths and mostly in novel and relatively inexpensive furs.

Brass Tacks Not Bombast

wages for railroad labor and decreased railroad rates, and higher prices for beef on the hoof and lower prices for beef on the table.

It is not too much to say that from the average candidate for office, in either party, he must accept either evasion or a doctrine designed to please him and appeal to his prejudices, irrespective of whether or not it tends to plunge the whole country into disaster.

He has seen the disposition on the part of political leaders and office holders to condone in minority organizations, acts of lawlessness. He has witnessed the stealing on the part of the candidates, of the habiliaments of a conservative party for election purposes, and then, after election, the betrayal of that party to those arrayed against fundamental principles of the Constitution.

The average man, with his sense of fair play, despises and condemns the man out to catch votes under false pretenses, and he feels that the desire of politicians to get votes in this way is endangering the fundamentals of this great republic.

As the enemies of the existing order of things group themselves for battle, the average good citizen knows that the elemental principles for which his forebears fought are at stake.

He demands a strong leadership, standing on the Constitution, and moving forward with law and order, common sense and high purpose, to combat strong leadership tending towards disintegration.

He has this in Calvin Coolidge and the platform on which he stands. Neither President Coolidge nor his party platform assumes that the Constitution of the United States is an outworn document of old-fashioned ideas, to be discarded for the principles of the new socialism.

Robert M. LaFollette, leading the army of extreme radicalism, has a platform demanding public ownership of railroads and attacking our courts which are a fundamental and constitutional safeguard of American citizenship.

Our nation is asked to leave important constitutional moorings to embark again into those contests through which it has fought up to the establishment of good government. Through the War of the Revolution, through the Civil War, and through the World War, our people have struggled to establish and maintain our constitutional principles. They are asked to follow into an attack upon them, massed behind an aggressive personality, a heterogeneous collection of those opposing the existing order of things, the greatest section of which, the socialists, flies the red flag: and into what? Into confusion and conflict of ideas and ideals and into the reopening of war upon those fundamental principles of human liberty and the inalienable rights of men which are giving in this country safety and opportunity to the humblest, and to establish which the blood of our forefathers was shed. This is the predominant issue in this campaign.

The League of Nations and the World Court.

The League of Nations, however noble may have been its intentions, was not approved by the people of the United States because it did not make clear to their minds that it did not encroach upon the sovereignty, and the power and right of independent decision of the United States, as to its own duty and action under all circumstances.

While many men, after study, believed that the League of Nations did not encroach upon the sovereignty and right of independent decision of the United States, the fact that there was a just doubt as to this stamped the plan as one which could not be accepted by the citizens of the United States.

Our people, by an enormous majority in 1920, fearing entanglement in foreign difficulties, properly decided that they would not trust their future to a document involving a question so momentous, which needed a lawyer's explanation to be read with the instrument itself. And that mandate of the people, so clearly and forcibly expressed, must be respected and obeyed.

Perhaps if those who drew the League of Nations plan had felt it incumbent upon them to make its exact meaning as clear to the average man as to those who drew it, the United States might have been spared immersion for five years in the immense fog bank of the debate upon the League of Nations. But they did not do so.

The Republican platform is right in assuming that the United States, in its own interests and the interests of the world, if it is to play its part and perform its duty in international matters, must do so outside of membership in the League of Nations.

The position taken by the Democratic platform upon the League of Nations is an invitation to again enter that fog of debate in a public referendum, for which there exists neither law nor procedure, which means that the program of the present administration of constructive action for the United States in its foreign relations, becomes paralyzed in a time of crisis in the world's affairs, when action rather than debate is demanded in the interests of all civilization.

In the United States, in regard to the question of foreign relations, general public opinion seems to have settled upon two great fundamental principles: first, that whatever be our form of contact and conference with foreign nations, the independence and sovereignty of the United States, with the right to determine its own course of action, must at all times, and under all circumstances, not only be preserved by it, but recognized by all other nations; and second—that, with its sovereignty always unimpaired, the United States should undertake to meet its international duties unflinchingly, exhibiting no moral cowardice and welcoming, in the interests of universal peace and progress, that contact with other nations by which alone relevant facts can be fully developed and common sense methods adopted for the solution of questions of common interest.

With these two great principles in mind, and taking things as they were, the present administration, under President Harding and President Coolidge, entered upon a constructive policy for the United States in its international relations, which is giving our nation its place of leadership in the betterment of the world.

The four-pact naval treaty was the first great accomplishment of this policy, insuring peace upon the Pacific, reducing the burdens of taxation upon the peoples by stopping competitive increases in navies, and creating a precedent for dealing with the question of international disarmament in the future.

It was in pursuance of this constructive foreign policy also, when the Allies resolved to summon an expert committee—a course which Secretary Hughes had long before recommended—to prepare a plan which might form a basis for the settlement of the reparations problem, that President Coolidge and Secretary Hughes approved the invitation of the Allies to Americans to assist in the work. They not only approved this call of the Allies from distressed Europe that Americans assist in its time of great crisis, but gave specific advice as to the men to be invited, thus giving them in the eyes of Europe, as they had in fact, the background of the Stars and Stripes and the American people.

Our opponents have referred to this as an act of cowardice. Upon what theory was it an act of cowardice? If the work of that mission was now recognized as having been of some assistance, or if the experts' plan had signally failed to offer anything of value to the world, President Coolidge and Secretary Hughes would have been denounced as men who had humiliated their country instead of endeavoring to put it in its proper and helpful place with the fearlessness which should adorn strength and the Christian purpose which should glorify it? If the President and the Secretary of State had evaded this duty and precipitated the question of official representation for debate, delay, and non-action, into the United States Senate, the United States would have had no part in the last desperate but successful effort to find a common ground of agreement for a new peace in the world, if indeed, but for their action, there would have been any agreement at all.

Had it not been for this attitude of President Coolidge and Secretary Hughes toward the Expert Committee, Europe might not today be facing away from the chaos and hatred of war. With the experts' plans inaugurated, France, England, Germany, Italy, Belgium, and all Europe, turn toward a new and peaceful life, with hope and happiness, rather than despair, in their hearts and prosperity ahead. The United States will be saved from the depths of an inevitable and great depression in industry and agriculture which the continued chaos and misery of Europe would entail. Indeed the whole world enters upon a period of peace and prosperity.

Under President Harding and President Coolidge, again, in pursuance of this constructive foreign policy, there has been urged upon the nation membership in the World Court. What a confused mass of argument, pro and con, as to our entrance into the World Court, has been created, not only by the political demagogues but by some profoundly wise men! What, again, are the fundamental propositions which will determine eventual public sentiment in the matter of our adherence to the World Court? As I said before, the people have in their minds principally but two things in regard to our foreign policy: first, they do not want any impairment of the right of sovereignty of the United States or its right to make a decision as to its own interests, by itself; and second, with that settled, they want the United States to do its duty in its international relations.

But in the propositions of President Coolidge in connection with the World Court, there is safeguarded the sovereignty of the United States and its interests.

In the fog of the argument to which the people of the United States are asked to listen on this subject, they want to keep clearly in mind that even when we join the court we are not compelled to submit a case to it if we do not wish to do so. In any particular case is one where our national interests seem to forbid legal arbitration, we are not bound to resort to the court. Because we help build the courthouse, we do not have to try any cases in it, unless at the time, in any particular case, we desire to do it. But we must remember that sometimes when a house is built, it may be a very convenient thing to go into to avoid rain and lightning. Yes, and probably avoid the thunderbolts of war! It is to our national interests and the interests of the world to have a court to use if its use is mutually desired by two nations in a given case.

These simple thoughts upon the World Court and the obligations which we would assume by adherence to it are sufficient to relieve us from any fears of the bogymen and the smoke-screens thrown up from behind political fences by the men who would drag this question of high purpose, of clear, simple, and plain duty, into the mire of political demagoguery. International problems are always susceptible of clear statement when thoughts of political expediency as to form of statement give way to the desire o plainly set forth truth.

Here we are, the greatest and most powerful nation on the face of the earth, possessing the capacity for world leadership. There may be people in the United States who fear that our representatives, when sent abroad, are not the peers, in patriotism and sense of duty, in ability and independence of character, of those whom they meet; they may believe that we should have a "craw-fish" foreign policy; but the great majority feel that to whatever conference in foreign matters, which involves the interests of the United States, our representatives may be sent, they will ably and fearlessly uphold the honor of the American people and the American flag.

The American people are a proud people. They will tolerate no leadership which will surrender an iota of their independence or sovereignty to any other nation or combination of nations. Such an action on the part of any of our representatives would be regarded as treason and dealt with accordingly. But the man misjudges the temper and the fiber of American citizenship who maintains that it is not as fearless in trusting its representatives in any conflict of peace as it is in trusting its youth behind the flag in war.

To morally rot in a policy of national isolation rather than to cleanly contest in those mental battlefields in which questions must be solved for the advancement of civilization, both here and abroad—is that the temper of the American people? I think not!

The Republican platform on foreign relations outlines a policy which, carried out with the common sense, clear vision, and courage of Calvin Coolidge, offers the American people a constructive course of honor, safety, and progress, for its own and the world's good. It offers the only policy, which, at the present time, means the possibility of accomplishment.

In the matter of our foreign policy, therefore, the two major parties, in their platforms, have made an issue to be decided by the American people.

The Democratic Party asks them to turn back with them into the morass of the debate on the League of Nations, through a public referendum, thereby paralyzing the hope of constructive action and policy in this time of an existing world crisis.

The Republican Party asks them to abandon the debate upon the question of the League of Nations, which they have already decided, and to stand by the common sense and constructive foreign policy of President Coolidge and the Republican Party, which is placing the United States in that proud position of world leadership for which she has been designed by Providence and from which she can be debarred only be reversion to political expediency.

Mexico's Largest Pyramid

The pyramid at Cholula, west of the city of Puebla and about 60 miles southeast of Mexico City, is the largest in Mexico. Its base is 1,400 feet square and the altitude is 200 feet. Its volume is 130,666,600 cubic feet. This pyramid in Mexico has a greater number of cubic feet of masonry, although it is not so high, than the great pyramid in Egypt.

FIRPO ARRESTED ON PERJURY CHARGE.

LUIS A. FIRPO & BLANCA LOURDES PICART

On a warrant sworn out by Canon, the Rev. Dr. William Sheaf Chase, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Brooklyn, and president of the New York Civic League, Luis Angel Firpo, Argentine heavyweight, has been arrested in New York on a charge of perjury. The minister alleges that Firpo, in violation of the law, brought to New York with him Blanca Lourdes Picart, and that he swore that she was merely a casual shipboard acquaintance. The woman was deported to Havana, but Firpo was allowed to land. The minister charges that Firpo and the woman lived together in New York City when Firpo was in the United States training for his fight with Jack Dempsey. This photograph shows Firpo with the woman on shipboard.

Women Throng to Slayers' Hearing

They Formed Nine-tenths of Crowd Listening to Arguments of State's Attorney Who Demanded Lives of Chicago Youths.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Criminal Court, Chicago, Ill., Aug. 20.—"There are no degrees of responsibility—no man is above the law whether he be a nihilist, a so-called super-man or, not. His so-called 'philosophy,' however, twisted and weird, does not matter under a government of laws."

Around the tent, the state pounded along in Judge John R. Caverly's court room today, demanding the death penalty for Nathan F. Leopold, Jr., and Richard A. Loeb, for their cold blooded murder of little Bobby Franks.

The argument in favor of the noose again was in the hands of Thomas Marshall, technical expert of the state's attorney's office. As methodically as a well digger, he delved into the authorities and the precedents and presented his findings to Judge Caverly to support the state's contention that the young college prodigies should hang.

The court room was packed tighter that it ever had been during this unprecedented trial. All Chicago, it seemed, tried to get in the little court room to see the state's attorney cry for the death penalty. There were stately matrons from Chicago's "gold coast," flappers from the boulevards; a curiously assorted and intensely interested throng. And nine out of every ten were women.

Victim's Father Faces Slayers.

Jacob Franks, father of the slain schoolboy, moved his seat today. Througout the five weeks of the trial he has sat daily just behind "Dick" and "Babe", his eyes fastened on their sleek young heads, waiting, waiting. He has seldom spoken. Always he has sat just a few feet behind them. But today he changed his seat. With the state demanding the fulfillment of that ancient maxim "an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth", Jacob Franks moved forward in the court room and seated himself in a chair beside Judge Caverly's bench, where he could face the boys who killed his boy "for a thrill." He looked at them steadily, watching the expression on their young faces as the shrill voiced Marshall verbally danged the hangman's rope under their noses.

There was no explanation of this shift of seats. Jacob Franks simply moved forward to where he could look the slayers of his son in the eye. They, for the most part, kept their gaze fixed on the broad back of the attorney who was demanding their lives.

Compares Slayers to Nihilists.

Leopold, the intellectual, Marshall said with fine sarcasm, considered himself a "super-man", a disciple of Nietzsche, the German philosopher, whose teaching had such a profound effect on the German national thought prior to 1914.

"He considered himself above the law" said Marshall. "He was the super-man. He has even been described as an avowed brother of the nihilists of Russia."

Well, went on the state's attorney, there has been only one criminal trial in the history of Illinois that anywhere approaches this one. And that, he said, was the trial of the anarchists back in the '90's, and he read the decision of the Illinois supreme court upholding the death sentences imposed on those wanton slayers.

"Those men believed in their philosophies—yet they hung."

The long bar in front of Judge Caverly's bench was heaped high with law books as Marshall talked. He took them up, one by one, and with an experienced forefinger turned unerringly to those portions he wanted. He read definitions of justifiable homicide and the decisions of the courts thereon; he read definitions of manslaughter and the decisions thereon; and he compared the mitigating circumstances they outlined to the deliberate planning and the ingenious plotting with which the slaying of Bobby Franks was carried out.

Stresses Death Penalty.

Then he read the statutes covering kidnapping—also a capital crime. Here he pointed out are two capital crimes—kidnapping and murder. The law is explicit on each. Whenever he reached the phrase, "shall be punished with death," his voice rose shrilly.

One of the statutes on which Marshall laid particular stress was that which provided that a court in passing sentence on a criminal pleading guilty should proceed precisely as though the defendant had been found guilty by a jury. This was a thrust at the defense contention that Loeb and Leopold deserve some consideration from the court because they pleaded guilty and threw themselves on the court's mercy.

He read another statute providing that persons over 14 years of age can be found guilty of capital crimes, unless they were lunatics or idiots. Loeb and Leopold are 19 and their "age is not a mitigating circumstance" set up by the defense.

When Mitigation Fails.

Marshall read the indictment of the two boys. It stated that there was "malice aforethought" in their every act leading up to the kidnapping and slaying. Then he read what the statutes have to say and what the supreme court of Illinois had said on the subject of "malice aforethought." It constituted a lot and the gist of it all was that there could be little or no mitigation where a murder had been done "with malice aforethought."

Marshall read case after case which strikes at the basis of the defense. He read decisions featuring malice aforethought, the necessity for establishing a corpus delicti—a score of them. Finally Judge Caverly exhibited signs of weariness.

"I don't want to impose any limitations on either side, he said patiently, "but it seems to me to be entirely unnecessary to read some of these cases. The defendants in this case have not denied a single allegation contained in the indictment. They have admitted everything."

"My only object, your honor," replied Marshall, "is to present a correct and comprehensive basis for the measurement of the turpitude involved here. I do not want to overlook a single thing in this case that migt aid the court in establishing such a basis."

The judge waved his hand resignedly and the lawyer continued.

Loeb and Leopold are each 19.

Marshall recited the history of the Grant case—a poor boy caught robbing a store by a policeman. There was a struggle and the policeman fell mortally wounded. The boy was tried and convicted of first degree murder and the supreme court itself fixed the date of execution for next October.

"Here," said Marshall, "was no premediation of the murder. It was spontaneous. There was no planning.

"The supreme court of the state has affirmed the verdict and fixed the date of execution."

"Is Bernard Grant, 19 years old, who had no advantages, to go to the gallows under the law and these two defendants here who had every advantage in life, who plotted for months the deliberate slaying of a little boy, be permitted to escape the supreme penalty? Grant may have something the matter with his mind, too, but the courts considered him sane."

Marshall cited another case, that of another 19 year old youth named Anderson, who also killed a policeman. He, too, was convicted and sentenced to death.

Clarence Darrow for the defense interrupted the state's attorney at this point with the significant observation that Anderson had never been hanged but that his sentence had been commuted to life imprisonment by the governor.

"What difference does it make?" retorted Marshall. "The judicial and the executive branches of the government are separate."

There have been many hints in this case that if all other measures fail to save Dicky and Babe from the gallows, a last resort will be made to executive clemency—a commutation of a death penalty to life imprisonment.

Marshall talked for two hours this morning, for the death penalty, citing scores of cases and decisions to support his plea. When court adjourned for the noon recess he was still talking.

Women Outnumber Men

In the Babuyan islands, recently disturbed by volcanic eruptions and earthquakes, a very large portion of the population is composed of women. Fishing is the principal pursuit of the men in the islands and the frequent typhoons are fatal for the frail fishing craft, which accounts for the greater proportion of females among the inhabitants.

A Girl's Way

The young man next door was watching Bluebelle narrowly from his front window. He had declared frankly that he wanted to marry a sensible girl. The skies were dripping and the sidewalks were wet.

Bluebelle had emerged and turned her beautiful orbs upon the skies.

She inspected the sidewalks. Then she went back into the house.

"Wise girl," murmured the young man. "She has gone after her overshoes."

But Bluebelle, as it transpired when she again appeared, had merely gone back for her new earrings.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

POULTRY

RECENT METHOD OF FEEDING CHICKENS

A new system for feeding chicks has been substituted by the University of New Hampshire for that previously recommended by that institution.

When the chicks are taken from the incubator and placed under the brooder stove, they should be given a drink of a mixture of sour milk or buttermilk in which have been beaten up about three eggs yolks per quart of milk. This mixture should be accessible for the first 24 hours they are under the brooder stove. For the next seven days they should be fed five times a day with a sufficient amount of chick feed—which may be a mixture of equal parts of fine cracked corn, fine cracked wheat, and steel-cut oats—to last ten minutes. As soon as this mixture is eaten, they should be given a sufficient amount of an egg-and-mash mixture to last them about ten minutes more, made with 12 egg yolks to each one and one-half pounds of mash, and mixed thoroughly to produce really a crumbly mixture. Enough of this mash should be fed to provide one egg yolk to each 30 chicks daily.

The second week this feeding should be continued if a sufficient supply of eggs is available. Toward the end of the second week the regular laying dry mash may be given an hour both morning and afternoon, increasing the length of time until it is constantly before the chicks.

The eggs used in this mixture may be those taken out of the incubator on the seventh and fourteenth-day tests. They will aid materially in the development of the chicks and will prevent leg weakness to a large extent. If no eggs are available, a pint of cod-liver oil mixed with 100 pounds of mash may be substituted for the egg-and-mash mixture.

From the time the chicks are three weeks old, they should be fed three times a day with equal parts of mash and chick feed.

Why Does Sour Skimmilk Encourage Hens to Lay?

A year ago the Idaho College of Agriculture, through the department of poultry husbandry, started an experiment to determine the cause of the high production secured from laying hens that were given an abundance of sour skim milk. A study of the analysis of sour skim milk showed it to contain 90.77 per cent water, 0.10 per cent fat, 3.98 per cent milk sugar (lactose), 0.5 per cent lactic acid, 3.5 per cent protein and 0.79 per cent milk ash or salts. It was assumed that water alone was not the stimulating factor. The fat content seemed too low, and the distribution of carbohydrates did not point to milk sugar as a possible source of the problem. A comparison was made of rations containing lactic acid, milk salts, protein—free sour skim milk and sour skim milk. The results showed conclusively that lactic acid in the same solution as in sour skim milk is valueless for egg production. Besides both milk salts and ash entirely failed to stimulate increased egg production. The results all seem to indicate that it is the valuable part of sour skim milk. For two years, the protein-free sour skim milk has not given as satisfactory production as the sour skim milk. A further study is being made into this interesting problem. Pens are now being compared in which rations containing milk curd, milk case, protein-free sour skim milk and sour skim milk are given.

Green Feed Problem

Where the hens have free range, the problem of green feed takes pretty good care of itself, especially if clover or alfalfa fields are convenient. But bare yards are a nuisance. They not only curtail egg production at a time when eggs can be manufactured cheaper than at any other time of the year, but they bring about disease and encourage a general filthy condition that is detrimental to present and future flocks.

Cull or kill the chicks that are lacking in vigor.

Range and exercise is especially desirable for poultry breeding stock.

Sour skim milk or buttermilk kept before the chicks at all times will help prevent diarrhea.

Egg production is uneven throughout the year, being heavy in the spring and summer and light in the fall and winter.

Teach the chicks to roost early. This can be started when the chicks are about a month old. Place the roosts about eight inches above the floor.

Both colony and community poultry houses are in common use, each type having special advantages and disadvantages very much like the similar types of hog houses.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Aug. 20.—Industrial stocks gave another demonstration of their strong position in the stock market today as the high priced leaders in this group were pushed vigorously forward to new high price levels for the year, in some cases to the highest prices since the post-war boom of 1919.

American Can continued to dominate the industrial list, and after early irregularity, this stock spurted vigorously to a new high above 137. This is the highest price in the history of this highly speculative issue which in 1921 sold as low as 21½; United States Steel sold at a new high price since 1919, when 115½ was the highest price record.

Simultaneous forward movements took place in the active copper, motor, independent steel, shipping and specialty stocks, the last including the stocks of leading mercantile companies. Oil stocks were inactive, but steady, with the exception of the Pan-Americans, which continued to feature a brisk forward movement in reflection of the strong market for fuel oils contracted to the weak position of gasoline.

Republic Steel gained about 2 points at 50, Bethlehem 2 at 46⅛ and Gulf States 1 at 76; simultaneously with the record rise of United States steel to 111⅞.

Price movements in the motor stocks were uniformly upward. Mack Truck was the leader.

Specialties, with and without pool support, were strong today. General Electric rose sharply 6 points, Union Tank Car advanced into new high ground at 132.

Gilboa Reservoir Delayed a Year

Inability to Secure Labor Will Prevent Completion of New Reservoir Which Was to Have Been Ready at End of 1924.

An Albany despatch to The New York Sun of Tuesday says:

Because of unsatisfactory labor conditions the Gilboa reservoir in Schoharie county, the latest addition to New York city's water supply, will not be completed for another year. It was scheduled for completion on December 31 of this year. George B. Honness, engineer in charge, said here today that a labor shortage and union rules dating back from the begining of the work are primarily responsible for the delay. The union rules he complained of affect the bricklayers and masons, preventing them from working more than a certain number of hours a day during the few summer months when weather conditions permit such work. It cannot be carried on in the winter months.

The work was started in 1919, the contract for the reservoir and the Shandaken tunnel specifying that it should be completed by the end of this year. The tunnel was finished some time ago and a temporary diversion dam made possible the use of some of the water from the Gilboa watershed. The spillway section of the permanent dam, which is 1,300 feet long, will be finished in the fall, it is expected. The delay is in the construction of an earth wall, 100 feet high and 700 feet long, which must be constructed from the main dam into the western valley wall. It was caused by the fact that the work on it could not be started until certain other portions of the dam were completed.

The engineers found it difficult to keep men long on the job. Sometimes as many as 1,400 were employed, but large numbers of them when they learned enough about the work to be of some value, would quit. All they needed was to get a little money ahead.

Mr. Honness said that when the Gilboa work is done New York will have the finest water supply in the world. It will be capable of supplying the city with 1,000,000,000 gallons of water a day, or about 200 gallons for every inhabitant. The letting of the water into the new reservoir will necessitate the wiping out of the entire village of Gilboa, which has about 500 inhabitants. Its location is at the bottom of the reservoir. It is planned to tear down the buildings next summer and cart away everything of value in the village. One hundred feet of water will cover Gilboa's main street. One of the interesting features of the excavations for the reservoir was the discovery of a fossilized forest believed to be millions of years old. A section of it is being restored for exhibition in the state museum in the Education Building in Albany.

Wasn't Feeling Well, Man Coughs Up Lizard

Houlton, Maine.—Herb Tealing of this place has just gone through an experience he does not care to have repeated. For the last few weeks he has not been feeling in the best of health and complained of something in his stomach, which seemed to be crawling and for which he could not account. He had been losing his appetite and was hardly able to walk.

The other morning he had a coughing spell and a live lizard was coughed up. For a time Mr. Tealing was ill at ease, but he has begun to recover. He thinks he must have swallowed the lizard while drinking alongside the road somewhere.

DARING BOY SCOUT SAVES GIRL'S LIFE

Rescues Her from Wheels of Elevated Train.

New York.—One of Manhattan's crowded subways recently saw a woman saved from death through an alert and fearless scout good turn.

While standing on the Wall Street station early one Saturday afternoon, Scout John H. Jebens, Jr., of Troop 5, Babylon, L. I., noticed a young woman perilously near the edge of the platform and swaying dizzily. She seemed to be trying to move back, but was unable to take any steps. At this moment, as the train came rushing towards the station, the young woman lost complete control of her strength, and would have lunged forward to the tracks, had not the scout jumped to her side, and grabbed her. The weight of the falling woman, however, pulled the pair over the platform. They fell to the side of the track, and landed against the end of the first car. To save the girl and himself from being caught in the wheels or dragged, the boy reached for the lattice at the end of the first car. His clothes were caught in the coupling and torn. He himself was dragged a short distance, but he managed to keep the girl from slipping to the tracks.

When the train came to a standstill, the scout steadied himself and started to lift the woman to safety. Willing hands lent aid in bringing the fainting victim into the car. The boy aided in helping revive the patient. As she was regaining consciousness her nose began to bleed. The boy, applying his first aid training, stopped the bleeding.

At Fourteenth street the girl got off the train to meet an acquaintance who was awaiting her there. The boy went on his way quietly, without even disclosing his name.

The next day the girl's father wrote a special letter of appreciation to the National Boy Scout office, and enclosed the scout's registration card, which had dropped from his pocket in the strenuous rescue, and, when picked up by a bystander, had been placed in the girl's bag by mistake.

Woman Throws Dog to Stop Motor Policeman

Rochester, N. Y.—According to the evidence brought out when Mrs. Clara Nelligan, twenty-seven years old, was arraigned before Judge Kohlmetz, Motorcycle Patrolman Louth had an interesting time when he arrested her the day before. She was accused of operating an automobile while intoxicated. She pleaded not guilty.

Louth motorcycled after the woman following her collision with Joseph Pruiter, fifty-five, who was sweeping the street in Clinton avenue north, near Marietta street, where the woman is alleged to have run him down. When the motorcycle officer called to her to stop, she answered him by "stepping on the gas." The officer steadily gained on her car and just as he came abreast of it he got the surprise of his life when, he claims, the woman suddenly threw her Airedale dog at him. Overcoming his slight discomfiture, he renewed the chase, but Mrs. Nelligan finally decided to stop and argue the matter with him. The patrol wagon was summoned and she was driven to headquarters. The dog, being temporarily forgotten, followed the "blue taxi" and was there to greet his mistress when she alighted, assisted by the attendant and was escorted to a freshly dusted cell.

Then the police faced the great problem of what to do with the dog. There was no charge against him, unless it was creating a disturbance by his barking, but even so where were they to house the canine? The situation was finally met by one of the motorcycle officers loading the dog into his side-car and conveying him to the Nelligan domicile.

Find Watch Long Lost

Wilkes-Barre, Pa. — Twenty-two years ago—way back in 1902—Jewett Dyer, Wilkes-Barre business man, had a gold watch stolen from him in Baltimore. The watch was valued at $200. He reported the theft to the police, but never heard of it again.

Recently he received a letter through the local police from the chief of police in Baltimore, saying they had recovered his watch and asking him to identify it. Dyer did so and has become an enthusiastic booster for all police departments and their efficiency.

Davis Working Hard on Speeches

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Aug. 20.—John W. Davis, Democratic presidential candidate, spent the morning today at his home in Locust Valley, L. I., in preparation for the first hard drive of his campaign speeches—to be delivered within the next few weeks. The speech to be delivered tomorrow and Friday at Seagirt and Spring Valley, N. J., are virtually complete, but some hard work was spent on those to be delivered at Wheeling, West Va., and Columbus, O.

Davis will leave for Seagirt tomorrow afternoon where he will be the guest of Governor Silzer of New Jersey.

Odd Time Recorder Familiar to Indians

A sort of primitive sundial was sometimes set up by a Bellacoola Indian traveler to record, for the benefit of those following him, the time which had elapsed since he had left. This was used only where one followed another, not as a true sundial to tell the time of day. The Carrier Indians and the Chilcotin Indians also used it.

This time recorder consisted of a twig made into a circular hoop about six inches in diameter, by twisting the ends together, and fastened firmly to a slanting stick stuck up in the smooth earth. The Bellacoola, who so commonly traveled up and down the Bellacoola river, frequently put one of these upon the sandy river beach. The more or less circular shadow of the hoop was marked in the soil, and the distance that it had traveled from the mark indicated how long the recorder had been standing.

If the one following was traveling in a river canoe and saw the shadow was near the mark, his canoe party might pole hard in an effort to catch up, but if the shadow were far away he knew that it was probably useless to try to overtake the one ahead.

Many Names for the "Root of All Evil"

Money is money under any and all conditions, but in its transfer from one person to another it has many special names. Here are a few of the terms in common use:

Wages for workmen; salary for the office-force; emolument for the clergy; honorarium, or fee, for the medical man; dividend for the shareholder; remittance for the boy or girl at college; alms for the beggar; alimony for the divorcee; dowry for the widow; legacy for the lucky heir.

—Indemnity for the litigant; royalty for the literary man; interest for the money lender; stipend for the college professor; retainer and fee for the lawyer; commission for the salesman; premium for the insurance agent; "dot" for the engaged girl, and "dough" for everybody, to say nothing of "kale," "mazuma," "jack" and other appelations not yet admitted to good standing in the dictionary.—New York Times.

Water Digs for Gold

There are many forms of gold mining, but probably the easiest is that known as "hydraulicking," which is nothing more nor less than sending against the gold-bearing rock or soil a jet of water of enormous power, which disintegrates the hardest earth, or even stone, and converts it into a mud wherefrom the precious particles can be easily reclaimed.

There is a special apparatus used for this purpose. The current of water or jet may be supplied from a reservoir or a mountain torrent of great force, but in many cases a full-powered steam fire engine of a special type such as can be carried on poles over trails where wheels would be impossible, is the source of power.

Umbrella's Long History

The umbrella is of very ancient origin. It had its origin in the East and was used quite commonly in the ancient Empires of Nineveh, Persia and Egypt. The "Satrap" of Persia was so called because he carried an umbrella and the word itself means "Umbrella fellow." The Eastern umbrella was in reality a sunshade, for it was against the roasting rays of the sun that it protected. "Lord of the Umbrella" is one of the titles of many an Eastern monarch. In the Imperial days of Greece and Rome, only women carried umbrellas in times of peace, but in times of war they were served out to Roman troops, to assist them in avoiding sun-dazzle in battle.

That "Alteration"

It was a case of assault, and the following is what a witness said he witnessed:

"I saw the plaintive and the defender argumentive, and the defender struck the plaintiff, and the plaintiff struck the defender, and they both missed each other, and an alteration took place, and they knocked each other down, and—"

"That will do," said the magistrate. "Judging by their faces, the 'alteration' has been about equal. Case dismissed."

Morgans May Not Join in Loan

Continued French Occupation of Ruhr Territory by French May Cause World's Most Powerful Bankers to Refuse Participation in German Loan.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Aug. 20.—J. P. Morgan and Company, the world's most powerful international banking firm, may refuse to participate in the flotation of the proposed $200,000,000 German loan because of continued French occupation of the Ruhr, it was learned from an authoritative source this afternoon.

Thomas W. Lamont, who acted for the house of Morgan in the international bankers' negotiations here, consistently opposed French occupation of the Ruhr. Lamont and other bankers feared that the presence of French and Belgian troops in the Ruhr would interfere with the free working of the Dawes plan and cause increased resentment on the part of the German people.

However, there are other banks, it is said, willing to assume leadership of the flotation of America's share of the bonds even if J. P. Morgan and Company withdraw.

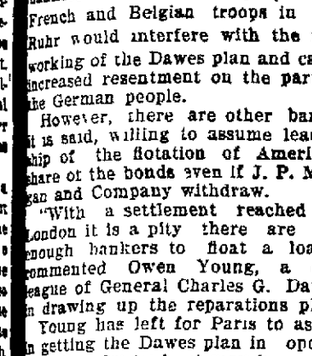
"With a settlement reached in London it is a pity there are not enough bankers to float a loan," commented Owen Young, colleague of General Charles G. Dawes in drawing up the reparations plan. Young has left for Paris to assist in getting the Dawes plan in operation. He admitted it may be necessary for him to take the post of agent for reparations in Germany even if for only a short time. The position already has been offered to him, but he said he did not want it.

According to the Westminster Gazette there is danger of a split in the British cabinet between Premier MacDonald and Chancellor of the Exchequer Philip Snowden.

Snowden opposed the Ruhr compromise and the signing of the Anglo-Russian treaties. He was opposed to a Russian loan and demanded immediate evacuation of the Ruhr.

The Daily Mail and other newspapers made capital out of an interview given by the chancellor of the exchequer to the Manchester Guardian, warning that British trade would be endangered by German competition when the Dawes plan was in effect.

McCoy's Sister Declares He Confessed Murder.



MRS. F. L. THOMAS

Mrs. F. L. Thomas, of Los Angeles, sister of Norman Selby, better known in the prize ring as Kid McCoy, told the authorities there that her brother confessed to her that he killed Mrs. Theresa Mors. McCoy, under arrest, asserts the woman committed spicide.

WAYS AND MEANS

TO WHIP CREAM

How to whip cream successfully will be demonstrated as a special feature of the dairy exhibit of the New York Agricultural Experiment Station at the State Fair in Syracuse next month. The station exhibit will be part of a joint display of the Geneva Station, the Department of Farms and Markets at Albany, and the College of Agriculture at Ithaca, in which an effort will be made to show what various state agencies are doing for the dairy industry of New York and the importance of dairying in this state.

Low temperatures and a high percentage of fat are the chief factors which contribute to the successful whipping of cream, say the station dairy specialists. Holding cream at low temperatures for several hours will improve the whipping quality of the product, even if the cream is not particularly rich in fat.

Cream containing 30 per cent fat and cooled to 40 to 50 degrees and held for 24 hours is in prime condition for whipping, it is said. Thinner cream will whip well if held at a low temperature sufficiently long. Pasteurization seems to reduce the whipping quality of cream, but cooling and aging will overcome this effect to a large extent. Samples of total cream which have been whipped under various conditions will be on display to illustrate the right and wrong way of handling cream for whipping.

THE PLACE WHERE GENIUS IS REQUIRED.

One clerk at a railroad terminal information desk answered 2,000 questions in a day. He was stumped only two.

One was the name of the leading hotel in Joliet, Ill., and the other was the name of the biggest laundry in Denver, Colo.

Among other questions he had to answer were: How far by motor from Los Angeles to San Diego? Who is the present mayor of Indianapolis? What is the name of Charles Schwab's country place? When did New York have its last fire? Who shot Caesar Young? —Dayton (Ohio) News.

Gilboa Reservoir Delayed a Year

Inability to Secure Labor Will Prevent Completion of New Reservoir Which Was to Have Been Ready at End of 1924.

An Albany despatch to The New York Sun of Tuesday says:

Because of unsatisfactory labor conditions the Gilboa reservoir in Schoharie county, the latest addition to New York city's water supply, will not be completed for another year. It was scheduled for completion on December 31 of this year. George B. Honness, engineer in charge, said here today that a labor shortage and union rules dating back from the beginning of the work are primarily responsible for the delay. The union rules he complained of affect the bricklayers and masons, preventing them from working more than a certain number of hours a day during the few summer months when weather conditions permit such work. It cannot be carried on in the winter months.

The work was started in 1919, the contract for the reservoir and the Shandaken tunnel specifying that it should be completed by the end of this year. The tunnel was finished some time ago and a temporary diversion dam made possible the use of some of the water from the Gilboa watershed. The spillway section of the permanent dam, which is 1,300 feet long, will be finished in the fall, it is expected. The delay is in the construction of an earth wall, 100 feet high and 700 feet long, which must be constructed from the main dam into the western valley wall. It was caused by the fact that the work on it could not be started until certain other portions of the dam were completed.

The engineers found it difficult to keep men long on the job. Sometimes as many as 1,400 were employed, but large numbers of them when they learned enough about the work to be of some value, would quit. All they needed was to get a little money ahead.

Mr. Honness said that when the Gilboa work is done New York will have the finest water supply in the world. It will be capable of supplying the city with 1,000,000,000 gallons of water a day, or about 200 gallons for every inhabitant. The letting of the water into the new reservoir will necessitate the wiping out of the entire village of Gilboa, which has about 500 inhabitants. Its location is at the bottom of the reservoir. It is planned to tear down the buildings next summer and cart away everything of value in the village. One hundred feet of water will cover Gilboa's main street. One of the interesting features of the excavations for the reservoir was the discovery of a fossilized forest believed to be millions of years old. A section of it is being restored for exhibition in the state museum in the Education Building in Albany.

Wasn't Feeling Well, Man Coughs Up Lizard

Houlton, Maine.—Herb Tealing of this place has just gone through an experience he does not care to have repeated. For the last few weeks he has not been feeling in the best of health and complained of something in his stomach, which seemed to be crawling and for which he could not account. He had been losing his appetite and was hardly able to walk.

The other morning he had a coughing spell and a live lizard was coughed up. For a time Mr. Tealing was ill at ease, but he has begun to recover. He thinks he must have swallowed the lizard while drinking alongside the road somewhere.

DARING BOY SCOUT SAVES GIRL'S LIFE

Rescues Her from Wheels of Elevated Train.

New York.—One of Manhattan's crowded subways recently saw a woman saved from death through an alert and fearless scout good turn.

While standing on the Wall Street station early one Saturday afternoon, Scout John H. Jebens, Jr., of Troop 5, Babylon, L. I., noticed a young woman perilously near the edge of the platform and swaying dizzily. She seemed to be trying to move back, but was unable to take any steps. At this moment, as the train came rushing towards the station, the young woman lost complete control of her strength, and would have lunged forward to the tracks, had not the scout jumped to her side, and grabbed her. The weight of the falling woman, however, pulled the pair over the platform. They fell to the side of the track, and landed against the end of the first car. To save the girl and himself from being caught in the wheels or dragged, the boy reached for the lattice at the end of the first car. His clothes were caught in the coupling and torn. He himself was dragged a short distance, but he managed to keep the girl from slipping to the tracks.

When the train came to a standstill, the scout steadied himself and started to lift the woman to safety. Willing hands lent aid in bringing the fainting victim into the car. The boy aided in helping revive the patient. As she was regaining consciousness her nose began to bleed. The boy, applying his first aid training, stopped the bleeding.

At Fourteenth street the girl got off the train to meet an acquaintance who was awaiting her there. The boy went on his way quietly, without even disclosing his name.

The next day the girl's father wrote a special letter of appreciation to the National Boy Scout office, and enclosed the scout's registration card, which had dropped from his pocket in the strenuous rescue, and, when picked up by a bystander, had been placed in the girl's bag by mistake.

Woman Throws Dog to Stop Motor Policeman

Rochester, N. Y.—According to the evidence brought out when Mrs. Clara Nelligan, twenty-seven years old, was arraigned before Judge Kohlmetz, Motorcycle Patrolman Louth had an interesting time when he arrested her the day before. She was accused of operating an automobile while intoxicated. She pleaded not guilty.

Louth motorcycled after the woman following her collision with Joseph Pruiter, fifty-five, who was sweeping the street in Clinton avenue north, near Marietta street, where the woman is alleged to have run him down. When the motorcycle officer called to her to stop, she answered him by "stepping on the gas." The officer steadily gained on her car and just as he came abreast of it he got the surprise of his life when, he claims, the woman suddenly threw her Airedale dog at him. Overcoming his slight discomfiture, he renewed the chase, but Mrs. Nelligan finally decided to stop and argue the matter with him. The patrol wagon was summoned and she was driven to headquarters. The dog, being temporarily forgotten, followed the "blue taxi" and was there to greet his mistress when she alighted, assisted by the attendant and was escorted to a freshly dusted cell.

Then the police faced the great problem of what to do with the dog. There was no charge against him, unless it was creating a disturbance by his barking, but even so where were they to house the canine? The situation was finally met by one of the motorcycle officers loading the dog into his side-car and conveying him to the Nelligan domicile.

Find Watch Long Lost

Wilkes-Barre, Pa. — Twenty-two years ago—'way back in 1902—Jewett Dyer, Wilkes-Barre business man, had a gold watch stolen from him in Baltimore. The watch was valued at $200. He reported the theft to the police, but never heard of it again.

Recently he received a letter through the local police from the chief of police in Baltimore, saying they had recovered his watch and asking him to identify it. Dyer did so and has become an enthusiastic booster for all police departments and their efficiency.

Davis Working Hard on Speeches

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Aug. 20.—John W. Davis, Democratic presidential candidate, spent the morning today at his home in Locust Valley, L. I., in preparation for the first hard drive of his campaign speeches—to be delivered within the next few weeks. The speech to be delivered tomorrow and Friday at Seagirt and Spring Valley, N. J., are virtually complete, but some hard work was spent on those to be delivered at Wheeling, West Va., and Columbus, O.

Davis will leave for Seagirt tomorrow afternoon where he will be the guest of Governor Silzer of New Jersey.

Odd Time Recorder Familiar to Indians

A sort of primitive sundial was sometimes set up by a Bellacoola Indian traveler to record, for the benefit of those following him, the time which had elapsed since he had left. This was used only where one followed another, not as a true sundial to tell the time of day. The Carrier Indians and the Chilcotin Indians also used it.

This time recorder consisted of a twig made into a circular hoop about six inches in diameter, by twisting the ends together, and fastened firmly to a slanting stick stuck up in the smooth earth. The Bellacoola, who so commonly traveled up and down the Bellacoola river, frequently put one of these upon the sandy river beach. The more or less circular shadow of the hoop was marked in the soil, and the distance that it had traveled from the mark indicated how long the recorder had been standing.

If the one following was traveling in a river canoe and saw the shadow was near the mark, his canoe party might pole hard in an effort to catch up, but if the shadow were far away he knew that it was probably useless to try to overtake the one ahead.

Many Names for the "Root of All Evil"

Money is money under any and all conditions, but in its transfer from one person to another it has many special names. Here are a few of the terms in common use:

Wages for workmen; salary for the office-force; emolument for the clergy; honorarium, or fee, for the medical man; dividend for the shareholder; remittance for the boy or girl at college; alms for the beggar; alimony for the divorcee; dowry for the widow; legacy for the lucky heir.

Indemnity for the litigant; royalty for the literary man; interest for the money lender; stipend for the college professor; retainer and fee for the lawyer; commission for the salesman; premium for the insurance agent; "dot" for the engaged girl, and "dough" for everybody, to say nothing of "kale," "mazuma," "jack" and other appelations not yet admitted to good standing in the dictionary.—New York Times.

Water Digs for Gold

There are many forms of gold mining, but probably the easiest is that known as "hydraulicking," which is nothing more nor less than sending against the gold-bearing rock or soil a jet of water of enormous power, which disintegrates the hardest earth, or even stone, and converts it into a mud wherefrom the precious particles can be easily reclaimed.

There is a special apparatus used for this purpose. The current of water or jet may be supplied from a reservoir or a mountain torrent of great force, but in many cases a full-powered steam fire engine of a special type, such as can be carried on poles over trails where wheels would be impossible, is the source of power.

Umbrella's Long History

The umbrella is of very ancient origin. It had its origin in the East, and was used quite commonly in the ancient Empires of Ninevah, Persia and Egypt. The "Satrap" of Persia was so called because he carried an umbrella and the word itself means "Umbrella fellow." The Eastern umbrella was in reality a sunshade, for it was against the roasting rays of the sun that it protected. "Lord of the Umbrella" is one of the titles of many an Eastern monarch. In the Imperial days of Greece and Rome, only women carried umbrellas in times of peace, but in times of war they were served out to Roman troops, to assist them in avoiding sun-dazzle in battle.

That "Alteration"

It was a case of assault, and the following is what a witness said he witnessed:

"I saw the plaintive and the defender argumentive, and the defender struck the plaintiff, and the plaintiff struck the defender, and they both missed each other, and an alteration took place, and they knocked each other down, and—"

"That will do," said the magistrate. "Judging by their faces, the 'alteration' has been about equal. Case dismissed."

Morgans May Not Join in Loan

Continued French Occupation of Ruhr Territory by French May Cause World's Most Powerful Bankers to Refuse Participation in German Loan.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Aug. 20.—J. P. Morgan and Company, the world's most powerful international banking firm, may refuse to participate in the flotation of the proposed $200,000,000 German loan because of continued French occupation of the Ruhr, it was learned from an authoritative source this afternoon.

Thomas W. Lamont, who acted for the house of Morgan in the international bankers' negotiations here, consistently opposed French occupation of the Ruhr. Lamont and other bankers feared that the presence of French and Belgian troops in the Ruhr would interfere with the free working of the Dawes plan and cause increased resentment on the part of the German people.

However, there are other banks, it is said, willing to assume leadership of the flotation of America's share of the bonds even if J. P. Morgan and Company withdraw.

"With a settlement reached in London it is a pity there are not enough bankers to float a loan," commented Owen Young, a colleague of General Charles G. Dawes in drawing up the reparations plan.

Young has left for Paris to assist in getting the Dawes plan in operation. He admitted it may be necessary for him to take the post of agent for reparations in Germany even if for only a short time. The position already has been offered to him, but he said he did not want it.

According to the Westminster Gazette there is danger of a split in the British cabinet between Premier MacDonald and Chancellor of the Exchequer Philip Snowden.

Snowden opposed the Ruhr compromise and the signing of the Anglo-Russian treaties. He was opposed to a Russian loan and demanded immediate evacuation of the Ruhr.

The Daily Mail and other newspapers made capital out of an interview given by the chancellor of the exchequer to the Manchester Guardian, warning that British trade would be endangered by German competition when the Dawes plan was in effect.

McCoy's Sister Declares He Confessed Murder.

MRS. F. L. THOMAS

Mrs. F. L. Thomas, of Los Angeles, sister of Norman Selby, better known in the prize ring as Kid McCoy, told the authorities there that her brother confessed to her that he killed Mrs. Theresa Mors. McCoy, under arrest, asserts the woman committed suicide.

WAYS AND MEANS TO WHIP CREAM

How to whip cream successfully will be demonstrated as a special feature of the dairy exhibit of the New York Agricultural Experiment Station at the State Fair in Syracuse next month. The station exhibit will be part of a joint display of the Geneva Station, the Department of Farms and Markets at Albany, and the College of Agriculture at Ithaca, in which an effort will be made to show what various state agencies are doing for the dairy industry of New York and the importance of dairying in this state.

Low temperatures and a high percentage of fat are the chief factors which contribute to the successful whipping of cream, say the station dairy specialists. Holding cream at low temperatures for several hours will improve the whipping quality of the product, even if the cream is not particularly rich in fat.

Cream containing 30 per cent fat and cooled to 40 to 50 degrees and held for 24 hours is in prime condition for whipping, it is said. Thinner cream will whip well if held at a low temperature sufficiently long. Pasteurization seems to reduce the whipping quality of cream, but cooling and aging will overcome this effect to a large extent. Samples of real cream which have been whipped under various conditions will be on display to illustrate the right and wrong way of handling cream for whipping.

THE PLACE WHERE GENIUS IS REQUIRED.

One clerk at a railroad terminal information desk answered 2,000 questions in a day. He was stumped by only two.

One was the name of the leading hotel in Joliet, Ill., and the other was the name of the biggest laundry in Denver, Colo.

Among other questions he had to answer were: How far by motor from Los Angeles to San Diego? Who is the present mayor of Indianapolis? What is the name of Charles Schwab's country place? When did New York have its last fire? Who shot Caesar Young? —Dayton (Ohio) News.

Colonials Lost To Glens Falls

Larry Doyle Outfit Takes a Game From Schirickmen at Glens Falls—Bober and Forsythe Hurl Good Ball.

For the first time this year the Colonials of this city were defeated by Larry Doyle's Glens Falls club at Glens Falls on Tuesday afternoon, score 5 to 3. Inability to hit in the pinches was the main reason for the Colonial downfall, eleven men being left stranded on the bags.

Bober was on the mound for the up-state clubs and although he allowed eight hits, proved to be very effective when the Colonials got into scoring position. Bober sent nine Colonial batters down by the strike-out route.

Rube Forsythe was on the mound for the Colonials and held the Glens Falls club down to seven hits. Five of these hits were bunched in the sixth inning however, resulting in four runs being scored. Outside of this inning and the eighth, in which the Glens Falls club scored their last run, Forsythe was practically invincible.

The Colonials started the scoring in the fifth inning when McCue tripled, and then scored on a passed ball by Akins, who was behind the bat for Glens Falls.

Five singles, a base on balls, the successful completion of a double steal and an error, all coming after two men were out in the sixth inning gave the Doyle aggregation a total of four runs Glens Falls scored their fifth and last tally in the eighth inning.

The Colonials started a rally in the ninth inning which looked promising for a while but which finally fell two runs short of tieing up the score. Schwab reached first on Ross's error. Coyle beat out an infield hit and Robins loaded the bases with a single Harris, batting for Forsythe, flied to center field Dugan singled and Schwab and Coyle scored. Flynn flied out to short but Deegan received a base on balls again loading the bases Raskin ended the inning by striking out.

Amusing Story Told on Umpire Guthrie

Monroe Sweeney, the new National league umpire, recalls an amusing incident which occurred during the heat of the series between the championship Fort Worth team of the Texas league, and the New Orleans pennant winners of the Southern league. Bill Guthrie, who has an inimitable drawl about him, was one of the Southern league umpires in the series

It so happened that Bill had called a close one which brought down the wrath of the New Orleans fans. Presently a dozen of more pop bottles started bouncing around Bill's bean and the other umpires gathered around him.

"Looks like they think you missed that one, Bill," he was told.

"Ah, naw," said Guthrie, "dem's only a few of my friends sendin' down their cards"

Yankees Fearful Of Washington

Senators Are Hard on Heels of World's Champions in Pennant Race — Washington Has Good Pitching Staff.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Aug. 20.—The feat of the Senators in winning four out of five games from the Detroit Tigers today caused Miller Huggins, manager of the world's champions Yankees, to sound a warning to his players to "watch Washington."

The Yankee leader said he is more fearful of the rush of the Senators than he is of the coming three games series against the Tigers, which opens here Friday.

Huggins pointed out that the injury to Lou Blue, the Tigers' first sacker, has handicapped Detroit.

"Cobb's young pitchers, who had been going great guns all season are losing a lot of their effectiveness," Huggins said. "On the contrary the Senators' twirling staff, led by Walter Johnson, is becoming stronger.

"Mogridge, Zahniser, Martina, Ogden and Marberry are a quintet not to be despised by any club. The first four are experienced box men.

"It will be the Senators that we will have to beat to win our fourth pennant," Huggins concluded.
